Course Description:

Senior Seminar in Psychology is the capstone course of the major. Students produce a dissertation of between 6,000 to 8,000 words in length, on a topic relevant to the discipline. Students are guided through the various stages of the dissertation by a supervisor. This course is only open to students within this Major.

Prerequisites:

70 Credits and PSYC 5102 Human Science Research and DATA 5102 Data Analysis and Visualisation

Aims and Objectives:

- To help students develop research strategies focusing upon the development of critical thinking and reading skills, the clear articulation of a thesis/argument, and the selection of appropriate theoretical and methodological frameworks.
- To help students identify a viable research project, generate a literature review, conduct empirical research, and write draft chapters, achieve the submission of a final dissertation.
- To help students develop self-directed and more advanced research and writing strategies that reflect a systematic engagement with a key issue related to a specific interest area in Psychology.
- To provide a background for eventual careers in fields (including work in government, international organisations, business and the media) which require articulate, clear-thinking individuals with a grasp of Psychology.
- To provide a framework to assist concerned citizens to think critically about issues that are of increasing importance in the 21st century.
- To promote critical engagement with a wide range of literature, and the development of both a succinct writing style, and the ability to present complex arguments orally.
