Course Description:

This course looks at London's historic past through the art, architecture, design and art collections of the area's palatial and stately residences. Drawing upon London's reputation as a 'museum metropolis,' the course uses a series of case-study houses and palaces to trace developments in architecture and interior design over nearly 1000 years, exploring how buildings are interpreted through discourses of power, prestige, and pageantry. Visits are made to key locations, providing students with valuable opportunities to practice analytic and connoisseurship skills.

Prerequisites: ARW 4195.

- To provide first-hand, empirical experience of the architecture and interiors of historic sites in central and Greater London

- To familiarize students with a broad selection of contemporary analytic discourses surrounding those monuments and locations.

- To promote critical engagement with the aesthetics of the built environment
- Through lecture, discussion, site visits and readings, to build a deepened understanding of the topic area by developing a working framework of British history, art, architecture and design from the late medieval period through the 19th-century Victorian Age of Empire and into the 21st Century.

Teaching Methodology:

The course will be taught through classroom lectures and seminar classes, and through a series of closely guided site visits, with the intent of using London itself, and its environs, as the 'living' classroom.

Lectures will follow the schedule detailed below, and are structured as surveys and overviews of both accepted knowledge and current debate on each theme/topic.

Short seminars will be held as feed-back opportunities in the subsequent session following each site visit, with a view to ensuring the integration of individual learning/interpretation from each site into the learning of the whole class. Seminars rely upon active student preparation, note-taking and response to each site, and will consist of student-led discussion of historical, perceptual and heritage issues arising from each site.

Visits will comprise tutor mini-lectures and explanations; student independent exploration, small group and full group exploration and guided discussion.
