ACC 5205 (3 US Credits)
Advanced Financial Accounting (12 UK Credits)
School of Business and Economics

This is a practical course aimed at students who would like to pursue a career in accounting or understand more about a number of issues that accountants face in the preparation of financial statements. The course focusses on issues in accounting and financial reporting which are the subject of current debate among the users and preparers of financial statements, together with an opportunity to further explore some of the key topics covered in ACC4200 (Financial Accounting).

Prereq: ACC 4200 Lecture Min Grade: D- Min Credits 2.33

ACC 5210 (3 US Credits)
Fundamental Analysis (12 UK Credits)
School of Business and Economics

The primary focus of this case-based course is on the use of financial statements to make informed financial decisions, including whether or not to lend or invest in the equity of a firm. The course recognises that financial analysis is a process, which begins with analysis of strategy, leading through financial analysis and concluding with prospective analysis. While some devotion to bond and equity evaluation is considered, the ultimate emphasis is on company valuation, a prospective analysis.

Prereq: FNN 5200 Lecture Min Grade: D- Min Credits 2.33

ACC 6200 (3 US Credits)
Taxation (12 UK Credits)
School of Business and Economics

To equip students with the practical skills in core areas necessary for an entry level professional accountant. This requires the development of an understanding of relevant concepts, principles and techniques, the ability to apply these in realistic settings and the exercise of judgement in selecting and advising on the most appropriate treatment. This course tests both the understanding and the application of these skills and techniques.

ACC 6205 (3 US Credits)
Financial Reporting (12 UK Credits)
School of Business and Economics

This course offers a theoretical and practical approach to the framework of regulations that influences financial reporting practice. Accounting techniques and methods that are adopted in practice will be covered and particular attention will be given to the conceptual framework for financial reporting and the preparation of financial statements that comply with International Accounting Standards (IAS), and provide a true and fair view.

ACC 5200 Lecture Min Grade: D- Min Credits 2.33*

ADM 3160 (3 US Credits)
Foundations in Photography (12 UK Credits)
School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

This course concentrates on developing the student's visual intelligence via photography. Technically, students will learn to use digital Single Lens Reflex cameras and Photoshop for image workflow and editing. By looking at the work of a range of artists, students will be introduced to some of the theories that underpin photographic practice and consider photography's place and role in contemporary culture. Throughout the course students make images which finally result in an edited portfolio of photographic prints. A studio fee is levied on this course.

ADM 4100 (3 US Credits)
The Language of Art (12 UK Credits)
School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

A discursive topic based course designed to familiarize the student with the range of ideas, the varieties of form, the uses of imagery, and the nature of content in the visual arts. The material is considered from a practitioner's view point. A studio fee is levied on this course.

ADM 4205 (3 US Credits)
Cutting Edges (12 UK Credits)
School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

This course introduces students to workshop skills and the ability to make three dimensional art objects. It provides instruction in the use of tools, materials and construction methods as well as the use of mechanisms to explore kinetic possibilities leading to personal sculptural interpretations. Schematic and observational drawings play an integral part in the generation and realization of ideas. A studio fee is levied on this course.

ADM 4210 (3 US Credits)
Stamping Authority (12 UK Credits)
School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

This course examines a range of print techniques where the processing of either pigment or light determines image-making. Students will learn cameraless photography, pinhole photography – including making a camera – and produce a three colour lino cut print. The course encourages the development of discrimination and has a focus on the interrelationship between different disciplines in art and design and the way in which they can be used for persuasive communication. A studio fee is levied on this course.

ADM 4215 (3 US Credits)
Developing Spaces (12 UK Credits)
School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

This course focuses on the study of typography and layout as fundamental tools for the practice of communication design. It explores the basics of type and layout design, using a diverse range of mediums and applications. History of graphic design has an important role in the course, as it frames and demonstrates the importance of this medium through practical exercises. A studio fee is levied on this course.

ADM 5200 (3 US Credits)
Video Production (12 UK Credits)
School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

A 'hands-on' video course involving most aspects of production from camera work and sound recording to editing and audio dubbing. The theory and practice of video technology are taught through a series of group exercises and out of class assignments. Students also study a range of classic videos and film as a means of understanding the language of the medium. A studio fee is levied on this course.

ADM 5205 (3 US Credits)
Off the Wall (12 UK Credits)
School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

'Off The Wall' is a penultimate year required course for Art, Design and Media students which examines the changes brought about in art production and display by the development and popularisation of Time-Based media (video), Sound Art, Performance Art and the Installation form. The course considers some of the works, including their conceptual underpinnings, created by a cross section of important artists who have been working in the areas listed above. Using that information as a spring board, students then make art which simultaneously develops their conceptual and practical skills in a selection of these areas.

ADM 5297 (3 US Credits)
Research & Writing Methods (12 UK Credits)
School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

This course prepares students to conduct significant, original research in the Art, Design and Media disciplines. Emphasis is placed on critical engagement with researched sources in conjunction with appropriate presentation and citation of sources used. A range of research processes are presented and discussed and opportunity provided to actively engage with these throughout the projects. Students are provided with input and feedback at all stages of their research and writing, both from the tutor and their peers.

Prereq: GEP 4180 Lecture Min Grade: D- Min Credits 3.00 OR ARW 4195 Lecture Min Grade: D- Min Credits 4.00

ADM 5400 (3 US Credits)
Intermediate Drawing (12 UK Credits)
School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

Develops drawing skills and provokes and stimulates thinking about both the technical and intellectual aspects of the drawing process. A developing understanding of the vocabulary and syntax of drawing is encouraged through projects that feature observation, analysis and expression. Students work from studio subjects and on location and are expected to undertake museum study. A studio fee is levied on this course.

ADM 5405 (3 US Credits)
Photography: Theory & Practice (12 UK Credits)
School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

This course is designed to familiarise students with skills which combine visual research, photographic composition, analogue camera operation and printing, together with conceptual ideas, especially those of narrative photography. Students provide their own film and photographic paper. A studio fee is levied on this course. The University has cameras for student use, although it is recommended that students provide their own manual 35mm SLR camera. A studio fee is levied on this course.

ADM 5410 (3 US Credits)
Exploring Paint Media (12 UK Credits)
School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

Combines study of pigments and various water, acrylic, and oil-based media, their uses and technical characteristics with studies of style, composition, colour theory and visual appearance. Students undertake a number of practical projects designed to enable them to explore aspects of theory and the potentialities of paint and colour, both as ends in themselves and as components integrated into work in other media. Discussion and the sharing of ideas and perceptions are an important part of this course. A studio fee is levied on this course.

ADM 6391 (3 US Credits)
Going Public (12 UK Credits)
School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

The focus of this course is on identifying and developing skills necessary to make the transition from being a student to becoming a practicing artist/designer engaged with the professional world. To this end, projects include CV writing, postgraduate applications and grant funding as well as the logistics and theoretical aspects of presenting work to a greater audience through curating exhibitions, projects and online portfolios.

Prereq: ADM 5205 Lecture Min Grade: D- Min Credits 2.33

ADM 6392 (6 US Credits)
Fourth Bridge (24 UK Credits)
School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

This course provides an opportunity for a senior student to bring his/her various skills and ideas together and focus on an ambitious self initiated personal project. The proposed project is expected to be conceptually sound, well designed and structured, and technically competent. Upon completion, the work is exhibited and serves as a capstone presentation. Each student works under the supervision of a course coordinator and may also be assigned to a specialist technical advisor. Students purchase their own materials.

Prereq: ADM 6391 Lecture Min Grade: D- Min Credits 2.33

ADM 6400 (3 US Credits)
Drawing on London (12 UK Credits)

School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

This course is designed to give students a deeper understanding of the role of drawing as an investigative process as well as an expressive means of communication. Drawing is used as a basic exploratory tool to examine London as the site for both subject – in particular, the river Thames - and as a research resource for the practice of drawing - especially the specialist departments at The Victoria and Albert and The British Museum. The course is divided between working in the studio and on location in London. The sketchbook is an essential aspect of the course in helping students to document the city, stimulate and develop ideas and as a reminder that drawing is a portable medium. A studio fee is levied on this course.

Prereq: ADM 4200 Lecture Min Grade: D- Min Credits 2.33 OR

ADM 6405 (3 US Credits)
Printmaking Workshop (12 UK Credits)

School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

Intended for students who have acquired graphic skills in drawing, illustration, and computer graphics or who have experience of photographic printing. It aims not so much to give in-depth knowledge of particular printmaking processes as to stimulate a creative response to all areas of image making that involve printing. The course is practical in nature, although museum and gallery study, as well as some reading, is assigned relating to the techniques that are explored in class. A studio fee is levied on this course.

Prereq: ADM 4200 Lecture Min Grade: D- Min Credits 2.33 OR

ADM 4210 Lecture Min Grade: D- Min Credits 2.33 OR

ADM 5410 Lecture Min Grade: D- Min Credits 2.33

ADM 6410 (3 US Credits)
Book Art (12 UK Credits)

School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

This course enables students to produce their own book. The approach is focused on the book as an art object and students will explore the wide range of creative possibilities for book making as a serious form of personal expression and visual communication. Students will bring their own particular area of interest/specialism or they may develop an interdisciplinary approach. An integral component of this course is the study of the history of artists' books and students will actively engage with the key resource centres at The National Art Library in The Victoria and Albert Museum, The British Library and The Tate Library. A studio fee is levied on this course.

AIFS Summer Internship in ADM (12 UK Credits)

Internships

The London internship is a student work placement that aims to provide students from all disciplines and majors with the intellectual, professional, and personal skills that will enable them to function well in a culturally diverse working environment in all key job sectors. All internships are supervised by faculty, and all last a minimum of 6 weeks in length and are carried out part-time Monday to Wednesday or equivalent. Each student will also complete 2 assessments throughout the internship, namely: keeping a written journal of their experience and preparing an internship portfolio. These assessments have been designed to help the student reflect on the skills they are learning and the benefits gained from the internship experience, and also to help them determine if their current career goals are the correct fit for them. During the internship, staff of the Internship Office and a faculty supervisor work closely with each student to ensure that the placement is a successful one. Students' final grades are based on several factors including, written assignments and a report from their workplace supervisor which is taken into consideration.

Prerequisites:

- 75 completed credit hours upon application to the London Internship (or 60 completed credit hours*)
- GPA of 3.2 for psychology; 3.0 for finance, and policy majors; and a GPA of 2.75 for all other majors (* minimum GPA of 3.0 for those with 60 credit hours, and PSY not available to students until they have reached 75 credit hours)

AMS 3100 (3 US Credits)
Foundations of American Studies (12 UK Credits)
School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

The course serves as a broad introduction to the interdisciplinary field of American Studies. The course aims to give the student a general understanding of key aspects of American history, politics and culture – stressing differences between the history, politics and culture of the United States and the rest of the Americas. Specific attention will be paid to the evolution of American Studies as a discipline.

AMS 5200 (3 US Credits)
Power in the Americas (12 UK Credits)
School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

This course aims to look at how the Latin American region was shaped by and in turn helped shape the contours of the contemporary global order. It has three main inter-related objectives. The first seeks to understand what role the 'invention' of Latin America has had on the development of modernity, particularly in the North Atlantic region, but more generally at a global level. This will involve specifically looking at the emergence of European colonialism as implemented in the Latin American region, its role in the formation of modern capitalism and the resulting social impact this has had in indigenous and colonisers alike, particularly with regard to issues of social inequalities of class, race and gender. The second objective will involve looking at the nature of power structures within the region and how these have manifested themselves at an economic, political, and social level. Finally, the course will seek to assess Latin America's role in the contemporary global context, paying particular attention to the implementation of and responses to neoliberal globalization within the region and what these experiences can offer our own societies in terms of seeking alternatives to dominant economic, political and social models.

APR 7100 (4 US Credits)
Advertising Practice (20 UK Credits)

Graduate Programs

This course explores the fundamental principles and tools involved in the professional practice of advertising. It introduces students to the full range of techniques used in advertising and enables and encourages students to apply practical tools with confidence. This includes designing and presenting their own ideas for an advertising campaign. It relates the practice of advertising to contemporary issues and developments in the UK and internationally.

APR 7101 (4 US Credits)
Public Relations Practice (20 UK Credits)
Graduate Programs

This course explores the fundamental principles and tools involved in the professional practice of public relations, with a particular focus on media relations and third party endorsement, although other PR specialisms are also covered. It introduces students to differences in key sectors in the practice of public relations including government and industry, politics and public sector, third and voluntary sectors, and reputational management for organisations and individuals. It offers a thorough critical overview of the typical practice of public relations across sectors, including their interrelationship, and enables and encourages students to apply practical tools with confidence. It relates the practice of public relations to international events and contemporary issues.

APR 7102 (4 US Credits)
Advertising & PR in Context (20 UK Credits)
Graduate Programs

This course explores the public relations and advertising industries, examining their history and evolution and how they relate to each other, as well as investigating the political, economic, social and cultural contexts in which they practice and reviewing their relationship with the media. It relates the practice of PR and advertising to international events and contemporary issues and developments, including criticisms of the industries' role and a range of ethical debates.

APR 7103 (4 US Credits)
Adver&PR in the Global Marketing Com (20 UK Credits)
Graduate Programs

Explores how the disciplines of advertising and PR are brought together within the global marketing communications mix, both in theory and in practice. It provides an advanced critical understanding of the role of integrated communications – including all marketing techniques, public affairs, internal communications, brand management, and specialty services as well as advertising and public relations - in the development and dissemination of organisational communications strategy.

APR 7104 (4 US Credits)
Professional Digital Media Skills (20 UK Credits)
Graduate Programs

The module is designed to enhance students' skills in the use of online media. It is split between two main assessments, one focused on research and development, the other on online media practice. For their practical assessment, students have to create an individual media project that sets out to use the potentials of the net and new media technologies in an informed and innovative way. Students will be able to focus on PR, advertising and/or journalism but will be expected to display an understanding of all these disciplines. For the more conceptual assessment, students have to do research and development work, coming up with an idea for an innovative online media product/strategy which they then sell via a short presentation. Students on this module are also required to keep a log documenting the work they do on their assessments. At the end of the module, they draw on the notes kept on their blog for a summary critical report, which evaluates the work done on the module and summarises the main things learnt.

APR 7105 (4 US Credits)
Advertising PR & Journalism in Context (20 UK Credits)
Graduate Programs

This course explores public relations, advertising and journalism, examining their history and evolution and how they relate to each other, as well as investigating the political, economic, social and cultural contexts in which they practice and reviewing their relationships with the media industries. It relates the practice of PR, advertising and journalism to international events and contemporary issues and developments, including criticisms of the industries' role and a range of ethical debates.

APR 7110 (4 US Credits)
Political Communication (20 UK Credits)
Graduate Programs

This course examines the influence of mass communications on the development of democratic politics. It provides an insight into the relationship between political actors, professional communicators and media personnel and institutions, and the way in which government advertising and public relations and political campaigning is undertaken.

APR 7115 (4 US Credits)
Fashion and Luxury Brands and the (20 UK Credits)
Graduate Programs

This course examines the ways in which advertising and public relations are used alongside other marketing techniques within the fashion and luxury brand sectors, both in the UK and internationally. It relates this to the evolving characteristics of media coverage of fashion and luxury brands. It enables students to develop their own media plan for a specific fashion or luxury brand.

Graduate Programs

This course examines both the ways in which advertising and public relations are used alongside other marketing techniques within the fashion and luxury brand sectors and the nature of fashion journalism and media coverage, both in the UK and internationally. It enables students to choose between creating their own media plan for a specific fashion or luxury brand and the creating a portfolio of journalism.

APR 7500 (8 US Credits)
Professional Research Project (40 UK Credits)
Graduate Programs

For students working independently on their Masters professional research project. The professional research project (equivalent to 10,000-12,000 words) encourages students to study intensively a topic agreed with a supervisor, and so develop skills and experience which can be applied in work placements or further graduate work. Students apply their knowledge from across the fall and spring semesters to researching and developing a project, which may relate to the internship. This course is comprised of intensive and regular meetings on a group and one-to-one (by appointment) basis with a project supervisor to discuss the progress of research, development and writing.

APR 7550 (12 US Credits)
Extended Professional Research Project (60 UK Credits)
Graduate Programs

For students working independently on their Masters professional research project. An extended project equivalent to a 15,000-20,000 word thesis is offered as an alternative to the internship. The professional research project encourages students to study intensively a topic agreed with a supervisor, and so develop skills and experience which can be applied in work placements or further graduate work. Students apply their knowledge from across the autumn and spring semesters to researching a topic on advertising and public relations, which may relate to their work experience. This course is comprised of intensive and regular meetings on a one-to-one (by appointment) basis with a project supervisor to discuss the progress of research, development and writing.

Introduction to Art Across Cultures (12 UK Credits)
School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

Throughout history and across cultures, humans have always found meaning and pleasure in translating their own natural, political and religious environment into images. This course focuses on key visual moments of this process, and explores their art-historical significance in relation to the specific societal context in which they were produced. It includes an examination of the most innovative and prolific artistic ideas of Western and non-Western cultures, and explores creative exchanges across and within artistic communities. Art-historical constructs, such as those of Tradition, the Primitive and the Orient, as well as the influences of non-European visual cultures on the development of modern European art are considered. Students will be encouraged to critically engage with various topics during in-class discussions and visits to London's rich offerings of museums and gallery collections.

AVC 4205 (3 US Credits)
Introduction to Visual Culture (12 UK Credits)
School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

This course explores images and representations across cultural and historical contexts: the way meaning and ideologies can be decoded from such cultural artifacts as advertising, photography, cinema, modern art, sculpture, architecture, propaganda and comic books. Through varied examples, it takes an introductory route through some of the most important cultural theories and concepts.

AVC 5200 (3 US Credits)
Museums and Galleries of London (12 UK Credits)
School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

Considers the nature of museums and art galleries and their role and function in our society and culture. Students study the workings of the art market and a variety of other topics that impinge upon it, such as conservation, restoration, the investment potential of art, and art world crime. Students visit many of the great London galleries and museums with their rich intercultural collections, as part of this course. A university-level survey of the history of international art is strongly recommended as a prerequisite.

Art in Context (12 UK Credits)
School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

This course critically engages with some of the major themes, methods, and approaches associated with the production, reception and interpretation of contemporary art. Beyond purely aesthetic considerations, students are encouraged to appreciate the historical narrative/s embedded within works of art. This course does not follow a standard art history chronological trajectory; rather, it is framed thematically in order to reveal the contextual interconnections that exist across time, space and media. Weekly visits to museums, galleries, and exhibitions, with their rich intercultural collections, provide an opportunity for students to engage directly with original art works and their display in order to exercise independent and informed critical judgement in analysis.

Senior Seminar in AVC 1 (12 UK Credits)
School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

This research intensive course for the major is the first part of a two semester sequence taken in the Senior year. Working with faculty in their specific discipline, students produce a research proposal, a literature review and a substantial draft in the first semester. In the second semester (AVC 6297 Senior Seminar 2) students revise their draft and extend their work to produce the 8,000-10,000 word dissertation. Students are guided through the various stages of proposal and dissertation writing, and draft work is supervised regularly in a process of continuous feedback.

New Media & Visual Power (12 UK Credits)

School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

This course complements the work undertaken in AVC 6XXX Visualising People & Place. Through theoretical and empirical insights into our image-based culture, this course deals with the multifariousness of contemporary visuality. Integrating traditional elements of visual analysis and visual methodologies with new media and transmedia approaches, the course enables students to develop a conceptual framework within which to evaluate the role of the visual in contemporary society and culture – moving from issues of production, image dissemination, to consumption (reception theory). The course is based around 4 broad themes: Practices of Looking (Research Methods); Reproduction and Commodification of Images; New Media Visions, Interactivity and the Cybermuseum; and Visual Power and Surveillance Culture. In a program of gallery visits and theoretical discussions, students learn about visual representation and various ways of encountering the complexity of imagery in the twentieth/twenty-first century.

Questioning Renaissance Art (12 UK Credits)

School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

This course aims to assess the main features of Renaissance art, and chart its popularity across the centuries. The steady progression of the Renaissance aesthetic ideal towards a widely accepted canon will be discussed, referring to texts such as Vasari's Lives Of The Artists and Burkhardt's The Civilisation Of The Renaissance In Italy. Through a number of case studies (Richard Hamilton, Candida Höfer, Michael Landy, Ai Wei Wei, and others) and recorded interviews, the course will then proceed to assess the survival of this canon in today's artistic practice. More specifically, does the distant existence of a Western Renaissance still matter to contemporary artists? And what is their relation, if any, to the art of the 15th- and 16th-centuries, in a globalised world where alternative non-Western aesthetic ideals have become a steady feature of the artistic discourse? Students will be encouraged to actively and critically engage with these questions both during in-class discussions and visits to London's rich offering of museums and gallery collections.

AIFS Summer Internship in AVC (12 UK Credits)

Internships

The London internship is a student work placement that aims to provide students from all disciplines and majors with the intellectual, professional, and personal skills that will enable them to function well in a culturally diverse working environment in all key job sectors. All internships are supervised by faculty, and all last a minimum of 6 weeks in length and are carried out part-time Monday to Wednesday or equivalent. Each student will also complete 2 assessments throughout the internship, namely: keeping a written journal of their experience and preparing an internship portfolio. These assessments have been designed to help the student reflect on the skills they are learning and the benefits gained from the internship experience, and also to help them determine if their current career goals are the correct fit for them. During the internship, staff of the Internship Office and a faculty supervisor work closely with each student to ensure that the placement is a successful one. Students' final grades are based on several factors including, written assignments and a report from their workplace supervisor which is taken into consideration. Prerequisites: 75 completed credit hours upon application to the London Internship (or 60 completed credit hours); GPA of 3.2 for psychology; 3.0 for finance, and policy majors; and a GPA of 2.75 for all other majors (* minimum GPA of 3.0 for those with 60 credit hours, and PSY not available to students until they have reached 75 credit hours); 2 strong academic references.

Art and its Histories (20 UK Credits)
Graduate Programs

Explores a range of theories and methods which situate art in its historical context, from the more traditional methods associated with formal analysis and connoisseurship (formalist, biographical, and iconographic) to more recent theoretical approaches (such as semiotics, feminism, psychoanalysis, deconstruction, Foucault). Students examine a variety of texts as strategies for determining and analyzing different theories and methods, and their application to visual examples with a focus on the twentieth century: situating the modern and postmodern precursors to art of the twenty-first century.

AVC 7103 (4 US Credits)
World Arts (20 UK Credits)
Graduate Programs

Addresses issues that relate to the interpretation, perception and representation of the visual arts in other ('non-western') cultures, globally, with a focus on indigenous ('ethnographic') and prehistoric ('archaeological') art, known as 'World Art'. Students are encouraged to investigate issues that relate to engaging with art across cultures, and consider critically colonial/neo-colonial encounters and the representation and display of other cultures. A range of case studies will be examined, which may include the representations and interventions of indigenous peoples and prehistoric art in the Americas, Africa, Oceania and Europe.

AVC 7104 (4 US Credits)
Contemporary Art (20 UK Credits)
Graduate Programs

Engages students with the diversity of contemporary artistic practice in an international setting, situating this historically, conceptually and theoretically. Students will consider critically the diversity of and interface between contemporary visual practices on a global scale, situating these within current theoretical concerns, and examining a wide range of case studies and the social, cultural and political issues emerging from these. Extensive use will be made of London's galleries and thriving multicultural contemporary art scene, with examples drawn from such case studies as the Middle East, Africa, India, China, Russia, Europe and the USA.

AVC 7105 (4 US Credits)
Visual Cultures (20 UK Credits)
Graduate Programs

This interdisciplinary course examines a range of contemporary debates around changes in new media and markets as they significantly impact visual forms in today's globalised world. Integrating traditional elements of visual analysis and visual methodologies with new media and transmedia approaches, the course enables students to develop a conceptual framework within which to evaluate the role of the visual in contemporary society and culture. Throughout the course students will examine a range of examples and case studies chosen from conceptual, performance and installation art, graphic novels, graphic design and comics, design history, film studies, television and moving images, advertising, corporate communication, public art and other contemporary visually-engaged practices.

Internships

The London internship is a student work placement that aims to provide students from all disciplines and majors with the intellectual, professional, and personal skills that will enable them to function well in a culturally diverse working environment in all key job sectors. All internships are supervised by faculty, and all last a minimum of 6 weeks in length and are carried out part-time Monday to Wednesday or equivalent. Each student will also complete 2 assessments throughout the internship, namely: keeping a written journal of their experience and preparing an internship portfolio. These assessments have been designed to help the student reflect on the skills they are learning and the benefits gained from the internship experience, and also to help them determine if their current career goals are the correct fit for them. During the internship, staff of the Internship Office and a faculty supervisor work closely with each student to ensure that the placement is a successful one. Students' final grades are based on several factors including, written assignments and a report from their workplace supervisor which is taken into consideration. Prerequisites: 75 completed credit hours upon application to the London Internship (or 60 completed credit hours); GPA of 3.2 for psychology; 3.0 for finance, and policy majors; and a GPA of 2.75 for all other majors (* minimum GPA of 3.0 for those with 60 credit hours, and PSY not available to students until they have reached 75 credit hours); 2 strong academic references.

Terrorism and Counterterrorism (12 UK Credits)
School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

In the wake of 9-11 Islamist attack and the 22 July 2011 Norway 'lone wolf' radical right massacre, terrorism and counterterrorism have come to dominate political agendas and media discourse across the US and Europe. Through a comparative analysis of the history of US and EU responses to 21st century terrorism this class studies the nature of the threats to Western security by examining types of terrorism and the development, strategies and theories surrounding terrorism. Given special attention in this class are: victims and perpetrators; processes of violent radicalisation; typologies of terror (religious extremism, political violence, regional separatism, state-sponsored terror and animal rights/ecological activism); and what can be done to counter and/or limit terrorism (surveillance/policing/de-radicalisation/education/social media); as well as how effective such practices are.

African Development Politics (20 UK Credits)
Graduate Programs

Engages with African development politics in the post-colonial era. The ideologies and strategies of promoting development are assessed, along with the problems and difficulties faced in on this continent. Beginning with the colonial legacy, the course addresses social, political and economic structures and transformations that have taken place. Both domestic and international factors are considered, with empirical cases and theoretical concepts being given equal weighting in the exploration of these issues. The relationship between state and civil society, and the consequences of this for development, is a key theme of the course.

DEV 7401 (4 US Credits)
Gender and Development (20 UK Credits)
Graduate Programs

This course seeks to critically examine how development processes affect women, men and gender relations. In particular, the course aims to analyse the differential locations of men and women in the processes of development; to understand what development is, the scales or levels at which it occurs, and the centrality of gender at every level. Accordingly, the course will examine concepts and theories of gender, development, reproductive and productive labor, and globalisation among others in order to reflect upon the relationships between the global economy and the gendered processes of development at both micro and macro levels.

DEV 7402 (4 US Credits)
Migration, Labour and Development (20 UK Credits)
Graduate Programs

The course will debates around Labour, Migration and Development from the emergence of modern capitalism to the present day. Specific issues will be focused on including; the agents driving and restricting migration; the developmental outcomes for both places of departure and arrival; transcultural impacts and outcomes related to labour migration; women in this world of mass migration. Students will be expected to seek out and develop theoretical approaches to case studies they focus on. While the course will provide models of possible understanding students are encouraged to engage with other possible theoretical approaches to the same materials.

DEV 7403 (4 US Credits)
Imperialism and Post-Colonial Theory (20 UK Credits)
Graduate Programs

This course seeks to examine key arguments by theorists of postcolonialism and their implications for development studies. Postcolonial theory has offered some of the most profound critiques of Western modernity's self-representations and claims to truth and progress. Such critiques have significant potential to reconstruct dominant understandings of development, gender, social change and emancipation. Thinkers studied might include Edward Said, Gayatri Spivak, Frantz Fanon, Aimé Césaire, Aijaz Ahmad and Leopold Senghor. Themes studied might include empire, gender and sexual politics, representation, minorities in Europe and diaspora, decolonisation, resistance and liberation.

Thesis Research (40 UK Credits)
Graduate Programs

For students working independently on their Masters thesis. The dissertation encourages students to study intensively a topic agreed with a supervisor, and so develop skills and experience which can be applied in work placements or further graduate work. The course is comprised of independent research and writing, overseen by a thesis supervisor, resulting in production of a 10-12,000 word thesis. Collaborative and supportive dialogue with the supervisor and fellow 'junior research colleagues' will involve advice on the research and writing process, suggestions for resources and research directions, and comments on draft chapters of the thesis.

DEV 7550 (12 US Credits)

Introduction to Economics of (12 UK Credits)
School of Business and Economics

Both global in its emphasis and multicultural in its outlook, the course addresses issues of developing countries from the perspective of elementary economics. The course introduces you to reasons for a lack of economic development. This could for example be the type of product that low income countries export, the climate or geography of the nation or its political situation. We will investigate indicators for economic development and look at the distribution of wealth across the globe. The course intends to teach students to critically appraise means by which the less well off countries could improve their living standards. We draw heavily on country cases to exemplify situations, the material used is current and draws on an interactive study approach for its dissemination to students.

Internships

The London internship is a student work placement that aims to provide students from all disciplines and majors with the intellectual, professional, and personal skills that will enable them to function well in a culturally diverse working environment in all key job sectors. All internships are supervised by faculty, and all last a minimum of 6 weeks in length and are carried out part-time Monday to Wednesday or equivalent. Each student will also complete 2 assessments throughout the internship, namely: keeping a written journal of their experience and preparing an internship portfolio. These assessments have been designed to help the student reflect on the skills they are learning and the benefits gained from the internship experience, and also to help them determine if their current career goals are the correct fit for them. During the internship, staff of the Internship Office and a faculty supervisor work closely with each student to ensure that the placement is a successful one. Students' final grades are based on several factors including, written assignments and a report from their workplace supervisor which is taken into consideration. Prerequisites: 75 completed credit hours upon application to the London Internship (or 60 completed credit hours); GPA of 3.2 for psychology; 3.0 for finance, and policy majors; and a GPA of 2.75 for all other majors (* minimum GPA of 3.0 for those with 60 credit hours, and PSY not available to students until they have reached 75 credit hours); 2 strong academic references.

Introduction to Entrepreneurship (12 UK Credits)
School of Business and Economics

This course provides an introduction to the concept and practice of entrepreneurship. The course intends to provide the 'big picture' on entrepreneurship, but to also cover a number of key micro issues relating to the more numerous small businesses that make up the majority of all business activity in societies everywhere. The course readily acknowledges that there is no single theory or model of entrepreneurship; but this lack of a distinct theoretical spine provides the course with its strongest advantage as this provides for an opportunity to present a multiplicity of case work and concepts. The emphasis is on comparing the diversity of approaches found within the world of the entrepreneur.

Entrepreneurship and Family Business (12 UK Credits)
School of Business and Economics

Family business makes up over three quarters of all business in Europe and the US and contributes significantly to GDP. Family firms can be small but some of the best known large-scale companies including Mars, Ford, Ikea and Wal-Mart - to name a few - are family controlled. This course provides analysis of, and insights into, the behaviours and dynamics of family firms run over time. The course is structured to enable students to confront theory with practice. Both the macro and micro family firm issues are considered and students will explore the long-term role of family firms in modern economies. These issues are confronted with case study material. The study of family business is naturally multidisciplinary, drawing a wide range of management disciplines as well as economics, finance, business history and sociology.

Entrepreneurship Strategy (12 UK Credits)
School of Business and Economics

Most of the literature and research on business development relates to the management of large, slow to change corporations. In a world where change is continuous and disruptive, such organisations and methods of development are being called into question and in this course attention is focused on the entrepreneurial organisation and how it needs to be managed and developed, strategically, if it is to compete successfully and retain its entrepreneurial drive and focus. Entrepreneurship, with its emphasis on innovation, is seen to be the means by which both businesses and economies achieve sustained competitive advantage.

Entrepreneurship Management (20 UK Credits)
Graduate Programs

Entrepreneurship is not limited to small business start-up. In this course, students will explore the nature of entrepreneurial and innovative management within established organisations linked with organisational cultures and systems. This course provides all the perspectives on the creation and evolution of entrepreneurial ventures. It covers important aspects of launching a business from initial idea to growth and international expansion. It considers planning, marketing, financial, legal, control and human elements associated with the start up, acquisition or operation of a business from the entrepreneurial point of view. It also deals with the special considerations associated with the management of a family business. The course will address the need to manage effectively in environments that are uncertain and complex, and where appropriate strategic responses have to be crafted in recognition of limited resource and indeterminate outcomes.

ENT 7110 (4 US Credits)
Entrepreneurship & Innovation (20 UK Credits)
Graduate Programs

This course explores two related topics: innovation and entrepreneurship. For firms to achieve and maintain a competitive advantage, they need to innovate faster and more effectively than their competitors. This course provides an overview of innovation as a complex process which goes from the recognition of opportunities to the launch of new products, services or business models. The innovation process will be complemented with an analysis of the current trends regarding the evolution of the concept of innovation. Concepts beyond product innovation such as open innovation, disruptive innovation, creativity, business model innovation and ambidexterity will be encountered throughout the course. Innovation takes place within organisations large and small. The course will also look at entrepreneurship: the process of innovation within smaller firms. It will explore the nature of entrepreneurial and innovative management within small organisations as well as more established ones. A multidisciplinary approach: linking with organisational systems to cultures – will be adopted. The course provides a variety of perspectives on the creation and evolution of entrepreneurial ventures. It covers important aspects of launching a business from initial idea to growth and international expansion. It considers planning, marketing, financial, legal, control and human elements associated with the start up, acquisition or operation of a business from the entrepreneurial point of view. Energy: A Global Perspective (12 UK Credits)

 Department of General Education

A basic introduction to the major themes of modern and historical energy use, this course covers the basic science of energy use and technology and the history and science of humankind's spiralling and sometimes insidious drive for new forms of energy. From pre-history through to the industrial revolution and beyond this course takes a historical, environmental and comparative approach to the development of animate power, windmills, watermills and traditional uses of biomass, through to the industrial revolution and the modern use of fossil fuels, including electricity generation. Investigations of more modern energy use such as nuclear fission and fusion, along with renewable technologies such as wind turbines, hydroelectrics, solar, geothermal, biomass and fuel cells allow the course to explore the possibility of managing energy sources for the benefit of all.

ENV 3125 (3 US Credits)
Foundations in Environmental Studies (12 UK Credits)
 Department of General Education

A basic introduction to the major themes of Environmental Studies, this course covers basic ecology, environmental ethics, and environmental science. Well known environmental issues such as global warming, ozone depletion, acid rain, pollution, and population issues are addressed from scientific, economic, politico-sociological and ethical standpoints. An awareness and appreciation of global, local, and personal environmental problems are developed, together with the implications of possible solutions. The concept of interrelatedness is a unifying theme throughout the course.

 Internships

The London internship is a student work placement that aims to provide students from all disciplines and majors with the intellectual, professional, and personal skills that will enable them to function well in a culturally diverse working environment in all key job sectors. All internships are supervised by faculty, and all last a minimum of 6 weeks in length and are carried out part-time Monday to Wednesday or equivalent. Each student will also complete 2 assessments throughout the internship, namely: keeping a written journal of their experience and preparing an internship portfolio. These assessments have been designed to help the student reflect on the skills they are learning and the benefits gained from the internship experience, and also to help them determine if their current career goals are the correct fit for them. During the internship, staff of the Internship Office and a faculty supervisor work closely with each student to ensure that the placement is a successful one. Students' final grades are based on several factors including, written assignments and a report from their workplace supervisor which is taken into consideration.

Prerequisites:
 -75 completed credit hours upon application to the London Internship (or 60 completed credit hours*)
 -GPA of 3.2 for psychology; 3.0 for finance, and policy majors; and a GPA of 2.75 for all other majors (* minimum GPA of 3.0 for those with 60 credit hours, and PSY not available to students until they have reached 75 credit hours)

Introduction to Film Studies (12 UK Credits)
School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

This course explores film as a medium across cultural and historical contexts. It covers films in its varied form, from the first projections in the late 19th century to online distribution today. Using examples of noteworthy films, it takes an introductory examination of the most important film theories and concepts, in the process examining how ideologies and meanings are imbedded in this vibrant medium.

FLM 4205 (3 US Credits)
Film in the Americas (12 UK Credits)
School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

This course introduces students to the theory and practice of transnational cinema, focussing specifically on film in the Americas. It begins with exploring Hollywood's changing representations of national, ethnic and gender differences and its historical domination of world film markets. A variety of counter hegemonic responses of filmmakers from former colonial and less developed countries in the region are considered. The course also examines the role that television and new media technologies have played in shaping contemporary film studies within the context of identity politics and trans-border narratives.

FLM 4210 (3 US Credits)
Introduction to Filmmaking (12 UK Credits)
School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

This course introduces students to key skills required for contemporary film making in its various contexts. Students learn how to use essential tools including video cameras, tripods and video editing software. Using these tools, students produce their own short videos and consider possible methods of distribution. By looking at noteworthy examples of film making, students are introduced to the breadth of contemporary film making practice and gain a basic introduction to relevant theoretical concerns.

Mainstream Cinema: Studies in Genre (12 UK Credits)
School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

This course investigates the development of genre films over a historical period. Students examine issues critical to genre studies, which can include iconography, key themes, authorship, and stardom. Specifically, through a study of film criticism and theory, students examine distinct genres from the 1920s to the present. The course also explores the idea that genre films necessarily retain basic similarities to reflect cultural concerns and to keep audience interest. In addition, the course provides an opportunity for students to examine and compare the perspectives of Hollywood and non-Hollywood genre films.

Science Fiction Film: Cowboys and Aliens (12 UK Credits)
School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

This course examines the important role that US science fiction (SF) film has played in the development of the genre as well as its wider significance politically, socially and culturally. It also recognises the influence that other cultures have had on the evolution of US SF film as well as the US's impact globally. The class begins by looking at SF's origins, defining features and some key theoretical concepts. It then examines SF's significance in the US and globally by focusing upon the genre's economic importance as well as a number of important themes, such as: (i) how SF film can be read as a means to analyse the social, cultural and political concerns of the day, including class/gender, Cold War/xenophobic anxieties and environmental threats; (ii) how SF film can be interpreted as a critique (and sometimes a champion) of American imperial hegemony; and (iii) finally the trans-national connections between American SF and other world SF literature and visual culture (including cinema and television). The course concludes by studying the role of the internet in marketing and re-shaping the genre. Where possible the class makes use of museum and archive collections in London as well as relevant film screenings.

Documentary Theory and Production (12 UK Credits)
School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

This course introduces students to documentary film theory and gives students hand-on experience in producing their own short documentary. Students will examine some of the major works of the genre and explore how documentaries, like other types of "factual" texts, can present evidence, argue persuasively, shape public opinions, as well as entertain. We will also analyze many theoretical debates posed by the genre, including the blurring of fiction and nonfiction, the shifting definition of "documentary" through the last century and the problematic assumption of objectivity. Students therefore have the opportunity to try the different 'parts' of documentary film-making, including researching and developing topics for a documentary production, writing a treatment or proposal for the film, shooting and interviewing in the field, as well as crafting a story during the post-production and editing process.

From Script to Screen (12 UK Credits)

School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

From Script to Screen will explore the creative and practical aspects of script writing and advanced video production. The course is intended for students who have experience of video production and want to expand their knowledge and skills. Students will create and produce a video, starting from the inception of the idea through to the realization of the idea as a finished film to be screened at the end of the course. Focusing on the journey from having an idea for a film through to writing a high spec script, students will learn how drama is represented in the written form, analyze and explore scripts from existing films and other forms of drama, and learn more about the film and TV industry and the place of screenwriting in it. In doing so, students have the opportunity to try the different 'parts' of film-making, from the creative and theoretical – writing, story boarding, workshopping, casting and directing, to the technical – camera operation, sound recording and video editing. A studio fee is levied on this course.

Transitions: London Calling I (12 UK Credits)
Department of General Education

This core course focuses on you as a student, an active citizen and a future employable graduate. How do you imagine yourself in a year's time? In five or even ten years' time? How will you use your University career to help you to become that person? In this course, students will discuss and respond to issues related to the transition to University, reflecting on how they can become independent learners. They will learn to use a range of digital platforms for individual and group project work, focussing strongly on effective communication, including oral presentation and taking into account issues of accessibility for all. They will research the context of and plan for service learning in the London area, all the time looking forward to a professional future in a digital world. This is the first course in the Richmond Transitions sequence.

History of Football (12 UK Credits)
Richmond Int'l Academic & Soccer Academy

This course explores the history of 'the beautiful game' from the football's origins in mid nineteenth-century Britain to its contemporary status as global sporting phenomena. Through a focus on the historical forces that shape footballing culture, students are encouraged to examine how the shift from amateurism to professionalism radically transformed ideas of identity, belonging, and community commonly associated with the sport. The course situates the impact of these changes within wider historical contexts to promote critical evaluation of football's role in cultural, social and political life in the twentieth century. Students will also examine football's contemporaneous history by analysing the sport's intersections with postcolonial contexts, popular media discourse, and the socio-economics of globalisation.

School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

This course examines the causes and consequences of empires throughout history from a broad range of comparative perspectives, including the economic, political, social and (by way of postcolonial theory) the cultural. It investigates why empires are historically significant, how and why they rise and fall, whether they are good or bad, how they are defined, and how they can be resisted. The subject matter ranges from the earliest land superpowers of the ancient world to the 'New Rome' - the United States. It finishes by suggesting other potential contenders for imperial hegemony, including Multi National Corporations. It examines the question as to whether or not all history is essentially a history of empire, with the legacies of this imperial past (if not some of the empires themselves) still alive and well despite decolonisation. Where possible the course will make use of museums and collections within London.

Rise Of The Right: History of Fascisms (12 UK Credits)
School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

This course is intended to be a comparative study of various forms of fascisms from the end of the nineteenth century through to the modern period. It explores the fundamental interpretative questions concerning the nature of fascism, namely: whether there is such a thing as 'generic' fascism; the characteristics of fascist regimes; and how useful the term fascism is for historical analysis. This is followed by a study of the historical origins of fascism as well as an examination of late nineteenth/early twentieth century proto-fascist movements themselves, including Italy (where the fascist prototype evolved), Germany (where it was taken to its extreme), and Spain (where a variant persisted until 1975). Where appropriate other fascist movements and regimes will also be discussed, both western and non western. The course concludes with a discussion about the 'return' of fascism, examining Neo-Nazi violence, immigration, 'ethnic cleansing' and the return of fascism under 'other names'. The course is intended to be interactive with guest speakers, class visits, films, and regular seminar sessions.

War of the Worlds?Empire&Civilisation (12 UK Credits)
School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

This course offers students a novel understanding of the empires and civilisations of Europe and Asia by viewing them as interactive elements of shared international systems. Students are encouraged to rethink the traditional assumption that they can be legitimately studied in isolation and are introduced to the multiple cultural, social, geopolitical and economic processes that shaped their respective historical trajectories. In doing so, the course seeks to displace eurocentric conceptions of European development that see it as 'unique and separate'. These themes are explored across a longer span of time, including the study of the Islamic caliphates, the pax-Mongolica, and Europe's maritime empires. A particular emphasis is put on the strategic importance of control of Western Asia and the Eurasian Steppe to the contending civilisations of Eurasia.

Black London (12 UK Credits)

School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

The course examines the history of the African Diaspora in London over approximately the last 300 years, paying particular attention to changes in the demographic background to this Diaspora and the ensuing debates around the various notions of Blackness. The context to the course is the growth of London as the hub of an imperial system underscored by notions of race, and the subsequent changes to the metropolis in the late 20th and early 21st centuries. A theoretical underpinning of the course is that London is one of the centres of a Black Atlantic, as understood through the works of Paul Gilroy. The course will open up social relations at the heart of Black London's history, including class, gender and sexuality. London has a long history of ideological movements driven by the conditions of the Black Atlantic, such as: Abolitionism, anti-colonialism, Pan Africanism and anti-racist struggles within Britain; all of these will be within the parameters of the course. Finally, the cultural impact of the Black Atlantic on London will be looked at in all its diversity, including, but not restricted to: literature, religion, music, fashion, language, cuisine, etc.

James Bond: International Cultural Hist (12 UK Credits)

School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

James Bond (007) is a global brand: for sixty years a hugely popular cultural icon, with around half of the planet having seen a Bond film. Bond is a quintessentially British creation; yet his adventures were set on a global stage and reflect the contemporary political milieu – from fighting communists with his American cousins to today battles with terrorists, media barons and assorted megalomaniacs. This course is therefore also a study of the second half of the twentieth century – particularly the special relationship between the US and the UK. Equally relevant are issues related to branding, class, race, gender, product placement and popular music. Students will visit key historical sites related to the history of Bond, using locations (particularly in London) as well as both the books and films as a means to study international history, as well as cultural and political change. Centuries of Genocide: A History (TP) (12 UK Credits)

School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

The 20th century has been called 'the century of genocide', the attempt to systematically exterminate a whole group of peoples based on their religious, ethnic or national origins. This special 'travelling' course studies the evolution and significance of genocide, from the nineteenth century through to the twenty-first. Beginning with the near extermination of First Nation/indigenous peoples by European colonisers, it goes on to examine a wide array of regional and country specific case studies in Europe, Asia and Africa. Students will visit key historical sites in formerly Nazi-occupied Europe and make use of special collections as they explore specific case studies in the context of their locations. It will address key questions such as why genocide occurs and what we can learn from these historical examples to prevent future genocides. School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

The course aims to introduce students, by way of specific case-studies ranging from the ancient world to the modern day, to innovative methods of studying the past that utilise popular forms of visual culture and propaganda. While recognising the complexity of the propaganda process and the various influences that form and shape images, the course will focus on the historical relationship between propaganda (in architecture, cartoons, film, painting, pamphlets, photography, posters, sculpture, and television) and politics. The focus on the theme of propaganda and its relationship with various forms of media through the ages allows for the opportunity to compare and contrast particular case-studies over time and geographical space and therefore to distinguish elements of continuity and change, which will help students to 'read' historic images critically, both as vehicles for understanding the past and in order to identify the relationship between propaganda and power.

Island to Empire: British Hist. 1707-1922 (12 UK Credits)

School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

Surveys the history of modern Britain during its formative period of industrialization and empire building. An agrarian society ruled by a powerful aristocracy made way, not without moments of crisis, for an industrial society with a democratic franchise and organized political parties. The interaction between the old order and the new provides this course with its basic theme.

Internships

The London internship is a student work placement that aims to provide students from all disciplines and majors with the intellectual, professional, and personal skills that will enable them to function well in a culturally diverse working environment in all key job sectors. All internships are supervised by faculty, and all last a minimum of 9 weeks in length and are carried out full time Monday to Thursday/ Friday. Each student will also complete a series of assessments throughout the internship, such as keeping a written journal of their experience, preparing an internship portfolio, and delivering a final presentation. These assessments have been designed to help the student reflect on the skills they are learning and the benefits gained from the internship experience, and also to help them determine if their current career goals are the correct fit for them. During the internship, the staff of the Internship Office and a faculty supervisor work closely with each student to ensure that the placement is a successful one. Students' final grades are based on several factors including, written assignments, presentation, and a report from their workplace supervisor which is taken into consideration. Prerequisite: 75 completed credit hours upon application to the London Internship, GPA of 3.0 for finance, and psychology majors and a GPA of 2.75 for all other majors, 2 strong academic references.

International Field Research (24 UK Credits)
Department of General Education

The International Field Research is a unique, project-based, experiential learning programme that brings faculty and students together in a close, task-orientated and collaborative learning relationship that focuses upon a particular nation, region and/or theme. Taking place in the summer, first in London and then in the geographical area being investigated, students carry out primary research which builds on their major's or minor's focus. Led by faculty who have practical and academic expertise in the region/subject, students follow an extensive in-field programme of lectures, seminars, guest speakers and study visits. These are organised in conjunction with local higher educational institutions, partners and organisations. Where possible students are paired with local counterparts to enable them to benefit from indigenous perspectives and knowledge.

Introduction to International Relations (12 UK Credits)
School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

This course is a broad introductory survey of international relations. It acquaints students with the fundamental concepts and theories used in the discipline that help us make sense of our political world, and are crucial for further analysis of the field. The course gives students a taste of the theoretical debates and practical dynamics of global politics. It further examines some of the major challenges that humanity faces in the 21st century. Students get a chance to learn about and take part in the major debates of the discipline, for example concerning actors in the international system, the sources of insecurity, the relevance of economics to international politics, the importance of fighting poverty and underdevelopment, questions about how best to address environmental challenges, whether the state is still important and if globalization is a phenomena of the 20th century.

Evolution of International Systems (12 UK Credits)
School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

This course is designed to be a study of the evolution, and gradual development of, the European 'states' system. It will provide a comparative cultural, economic, historical, and political analysis of how international systems have evolved and functioned, illustrating the ways in which 'states' interact with one another within systems. It will begin with the fall of the Roman Empire in Western Europe, move through to the early European systems of the medieval period, on to the wars of religion of the sixteenth century, the defeat of Napoleon in 1813, and end with the Paris Peace Conference of 1919. This course will analyse the development of European international systems, the methods via which they were spread, and examine the elaborate rules and practices that regulate them.

Global Governance (12 UK Credits)
School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

This course investigates cooperation and discord in international organisation. While evaluating theoretical debates and examining a selection of inter-governmental organisation, the focus is on broader questions of how the global system is organised. Students interrogate the role that power and coercion play, the inequalities and marginalisations in the international system, the nature and role of non-state actors, and the content of the global political agenda. The course critically evaluates different forms of governance from grassroots to regional governance, from global multilateral negotiations to economic crisis management. Questions about the continuity and change of global governance are addressed both holistically and in the case of specific institutions.

Security Studies (12 UK Credits)
School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

This course examines enduring and contemporary questions of security and insecurity in the international system. Security has traditionally been defined in terms of strategic state politics and the use of military force to counter external military threats. The end of the Cold War and the ensuing conflicts of the late-20th century raised questions about the continued relevance of traditional theories of security. New security threats have been defined both in the academic literature and by state security strategies. This course critically evaluates these developments using IR and security studies theories, supplemented by practical case-studies. Students investigate the definition of the term security and threats to security, questions about the referent object of security, the root causes of insecurity and the methods of eliminating or lessening such threats. The course evaluates traditional and contemporary security concepts such as national security, conventional weapons systems, nuclear non-proliferation, human security, responsibility to protect, the poverty-security nexus in a post-Westphalian context.

School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

Follows the developmental trajectory of East and South-East Asian states in the post-colonial era. The course will address both the international context and the internal social, political and economic dynamics of these states. Particular emphasis is placed on different theoretical and empirical explanations for both the phase of rapid economic growth and development (the 'miracle') and the 1997/1998 Asian Economic Crisis (the 'meltdown'). The international relations of the region are addressed through a study of ASEAN, and of the political economic significance of the 'hot' Cold War in East and South East Asia.

International Relations Theory (12 UK Credits)
School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

The theories of international relations are best introduced through a study of the classic texts and debates in the discipline. This course examines most of the theories and approaches to international politics, as well as their historic foundations. It begins with some philosophical debates regarding the purpose of theorising, the importance of understanding ontological and epistemological assumptions and the difference between 'understanding' and 'explaining' in international relations theory. The course then critically evaluates the grand and middle range theories of IR, followed by a multitude of multidisciplinary approaches to conceptualising global politics and the post-positivist critiques. The course provides students with a set of conceptual and analytical tools in order to acquire a deeper and more nuanced understanding of international relations and global politics.

School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

This course examines the concept, scope and nature of Public International Law and its significance in the context of the international political system. It examines both the legal approach to international politics and the IR approach to public international law. The course explores key issues in international law such as: the nature of international laws, the significance of state practice, the sources and jurisdiction of law, the role of law in limiting the use of force, governing environmental politics and trade. Questions of statehood are examined and case studies discussed to shed light on the controversies that characterise legal debates such as evaluation of the war in Iraq, the independence of Kosovo and South Sudan, the attitudes of the US towards international law, the role of International Tribunals and the United Nations. PLT MAJORS SHOULD NOT ENROL IN THIS COURSE.

International Human Rights (12 UK Credits)
School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

This course will cover the evolution of international human rights and of the various regional and international treaties and institutions designed for their protection. It will interrogate the fundamental tension between state sovereignty and individual rights, guaranteed by international law. It will further examine the historic and theoretical foundations of the idea of human rights in various civilizations and cultures, evaluate their legacy within western and non-western traditions, and examine their meaning and relevance in thinking about international human rights in contemporary world politics. The class principally draws on the theories and methodological approaches of the following disciplines: Sociology, International Law and International Relations. The course will address the classic debate regarding the universality of international human rights. Students will have an opportunity to critically evaluate a number of specific human rights regimes as illustration of the complex politics of contemporary human rights. The course further evaluates the pressures that developments in the broader field of global politics place on the protection of human rights.

AIFS Summer Internship in INR (12 UK Credits)
Internships

The London internship is a student work placement that aims to provide students from all disciplines and majors with the intellectual, professional, and personal skills that will enable them to function well in a culturally diverse working environment in all key job sectors. All internships are supervised by faculty, and all last a minimum of 6 weeks in length and are carried out part-time Monday to Wednesday or equivalent. Each student will also complete 2 assessments throughout the internship, namely: keeping a written journal of their experience and preparing an internship portfolio. These assessments have been designed to help the student reflect on the skills they are learning and the benefits gained from the internship experience, and also to help them determine if their current career goals are the correct fit for them. During the internship, staff of the Internship Office and a faculty supervisor work closely with each student to ensure that the placement is a successful one. Students' final grades are based on several factors including, written assignments and a report from their workplace supervisor which is taken into consideration. Prerequisites: 75 completed credit hours upon application to the London Internship (or 60 completed credit hours); GPA of 3.2 for psychology; 3.0 for finance, and policy majors; and a GPA of 2.75 for all other majors (* minimum GPA of 3.0 for those with 60 credit hours, and PSY not available to students until they have reached 75 credit hours); 2 strong academic references.

Research Methodology (20 UK Credits)
Graduate Programs

Introduces students to the process of research, including the ability to work from libraries and institutional archives, and developing skills in academic writing, with a focus on the fields of international history, international theory, current affairs and policy processes. Students are encouraged to develop independence of thought by discovering, evaluating and making appropriate use of a wide range of approaches to research and writing. Complimenting the courses on theory and concepts, this course assists students with the identification of their own interests as they move towards choosing a thesis topic.

INR 7101 (4 US Credits)
International Relations Theory Concepts (20 UK Credits)
Graduate Programs

This course engages students with the theoretical and conceptual debates that characterise the field of International Relations. Students examine a range of primary texts, both classical (such as Thucydides and Machiavelli) and more contemporary (such as Morgenthau, Bull, Wendt, Mearsheimer, and Keohane). The scholars that are addressed have underpinned the schools of thought that define International Relations theory. The course also addresses broader questions of IR theory: the applicability of theory to contemporary events and the degree to which continuity and change characterise the subject.

INR 7105 (4 US Credits)
Global Political Economy (20 UK Credits)
Graduate Programs

This course will examine the global political economy through a framework that goes beyond traditions of state-centrism, boundaries between politics and economics and the concept of globalisation as an overarching structural force. The course will study theoretical approaches to international political economy (IPE) and examine contemporary issues pertaining to processes of globalisation. Students explore the theories of leading analysts in the historical development of IPE, which may include Gilpin, Keohane, Cox and Kindleberger. Contemporary themes and issues are addressed, potentially including economic crises, trade, production and the role of International Financial Institutions (IFIs).

To that end, the course asks whether and how issues of corporate ownership affect the agendas of a variety of media actors. The course will specifically look into the agenda-setting powers of the media in the areas of diplomacy, foreign policy, war and conflict resolution, environmental protection, international development and global justice campaigns. It will also analyse how states, international organisations, terrorist organisations and actors from the global civil society use and respond to the media through strategies of news management, public and cultural diplomacy, propaganda and censorship. Finally, the course will consider the manner in which journalists and news-makers gather, produce and disseminate information.

INR 7403 (4 US Credits)
Global Environment Politics (20 UK Credits)
Graduate Programs

This course explores the dynamics, challenges and prospects of global environmental governance. It introduces students to the history of global environmentalism and discusses relevant theoretical developments in this field, especially the competing perspectives of realism, liberalism, constructivism and Marxism. The normative concerns of global environmentalism are discussed along with key concepts of Green politics (sustainability, consumption, North-South relations, globalization, environmental justice, ethics and citizenship), while the processes of environmental policy-making are examined through case studies in areas such as whaling, ozone depletion, deforestation and especially climate change. The role of key actors in global environmental politics is analyzed, including states, intergovernmental organizations, international non-governmental organizations, business corporations and scientific experts.

INR 7422 (4 US Credits)
Conflict and Post-Conflict Studies (20 UK Credits)
Graduate Programs

Conflict and Post-Conflict Studies are central to the discipline of International Relations. This course addresses three core aspects of this subject area in both theory and practice. First, the dynamics and causes of conflict, including the changing character of war and its impact on contemporary societies and armies are addressed. Second, the course engages with the various strategies of conflict resolution and prevention utilised over the last twenty years. Third, the course examines post-conflict states and regimes and evaluates the difficulties of facilitating peace-building and reconstruction for international, state and non-state actors. Throughout the course, students engage with case studies of conflict, conflict resolution and post-conflict reconstruction, which are used to ground the theoretical and conceptual discussion in clear empirical contexts.

INR 7423 (4 US Credits)
Diplomacy (20 UK Credits)
Graduate Programs

This course offers an overview of the historical evolution and practice of contemporary diplomacy. It begins with analysis of what a modern diplomat currently does, both at home and abroad, set within the context of diplomatic history and theory. Strategic Brand Management (20 UK Credits)
 Graduate Programs

This course is designed to examine the progression in brand theory and practice; according to several schools of thought, that draw from supporting social sciences disciplines - in order to master a set of comprehensive brand management toolkits. Course material will blend concepts, theories, media, case studies, and contemporary examples in order to encourage critical thinking and develop practical insight. In addition, students will be encouraged to problem solve creatively - through practical exercises and in response to briefs. There will be scope to attempt literary and cultural critiques: evaluating existing brands; assessing the viability of creating new brands; and develop brand stories. In light of this, the course attempts to offer a balance between the arts and sciences – with the aim of delivering real value to practitioners of all levels.

LBM 7103 (4 US Credits)
Consumer Culture Theory and Insight (20 UK Credits)
 Graduate Programs

The understanding of consumer behaviour is a vital part of strategic brand management. It is an area that is both comparatively recent as a separate discipline, and in a state of constant flux. Contributions to the field emerge regularly from the entire range of the social sciences. The formulation of effective brand management strategies is dependent on a detailed knowledge of consumer needs and wants, purchasing patterns and the influences, which exert themselves on that behaviour. Through the lens of Consumer Culture Theory, this course will introduce a variety of theoretical concepts underpinning the study of consumer behaviour, together with the practical application of this theoretical work in the development of branding and marketing strategies.

LBM 7104 (4 US Credits)
Advertising, PR, and Sponsorship (20 UK Credits)
 Graduate Programs

The broad aim of the course is to introduce, examine, and appraise how Advertising, Public Relations, and Sponsorship are used to promote branded luxury offerings. Course material will draw from a blend of theory, tools, media campaigns, case studies, and contemporary examples. In addition, students will be encouraged to problem solve creatively - through practical exercises and in response to campaign briefs. There will be scope to attempt media audits evaluating existing campaigns; and develop new media schedules. In light of this, the course attempts to offer a balance between the technical and the creative – with the aim of delivering real value to practitioners of all levels.

LBM 7105 (4 US Credits)
Emerging and Future Industry Trends (20 UK Credits)
 Graduate Programs

The broad aim of the course is to introduce, examine, and appraise live business issues affecting current and future luxury branding, industry and consumption practices. Course material will draw from a blend of theory, campaigns, reports, trade articles, case studies, and contemporary examples. In addition, students will be encouraged to problem solve creatively - through engaging with industry guest speakers and attending workshop-based seminars. In light of this, the course attempts to offer a simulated experience of working strategically within an organisation, as a researcher, or consultant.

LBM 7400 (4 US Credits)
Luxury Product and Service Design (20 UK Credits)
Graduate Programs

This course adopts the concept of Design Thinking as a basis for understanding and managing luxury and product service design. A holistic approach will be presented, which takes into account augmented features of luxury offerings, such as packaging, in-store design, customer experience, point of sale, and customer service, amongst others, that are critical to signalling and communicating luxury propositions. Students will be introduced into concepts, tools and methods, which will enable them to identify and manage creativity, innovation, invention, and integration processes in a strategic manner. The aim is to create a learning environment that allows students to both understand and deconstruct taken-for-granted practices by designers - in order to create proactive solutions to contemporary business problems, as well as manage upstream and downstream design processes with authority.

LBM 7401 (4 US Credits)
Entrepreneurship and Project Planning (20 UK Credits)
Graduate Programs

This course combines ideas and concepts from the fields of Entrepreneurship, Innovation and Project Planning in order to create a learning environment that allows students to deconstruct taken-for-granted tools, theories and practices by thinking-out of the box, to create proactive solutions to contemporary business problems as well as develop the ability to stretch boundaries in an attempt to identify innovative entrepreneurial solutions in luxury brands. By stretching the students thinking, intellectual, creative and innovative skills, it is hoped they will make better entrepreneurs, managers and leaders in luxury products and services internationally.

Graduate Programs

This course focuses on online and mobile activities associated with social media – as both a traditional broadcast marketing and two-way messaging tool. The phenomenon of social media in the face of: increased consumer power and influence, user-generated content, unconventional non-traditional media channels, and dynamic real-time content necessitate a different approach to marketing communications and sales. A holistic approach will be presented, which takes into account the augmented features of luxury offerings and their extended cultural significance as social capital agents and facilitators. Students will be introduced into concepts, tools and methods, which will enable them to manage social media campaigns in both a tactical and strategic manner.

Language Learning and Language (20 UK Credits)
Graduate Programs

The course is designed to familiarise the students with developments in theories of language learning and language teaching, most notably the evolution of second language acquisition theories and of language teaching methodologies. The course also examines the main issues in language learning and teaching in the European and global contexts of multilingualism and plurilingualism, the roles of teachers and learners, Chinese and English as International languages and lingua francas, as well as awareness of how such developments can contribute to learning and teaching practices.

LED 7105 (4 US Credits)
Course Design, Development, (20 UK Credits)
Graduate Programs

This course prepares students to become professionals with leadership qualities in language education by developing knowledge and skills in designing and developing effective language courses and curricula that meet the needs of learners in an age of multilingualism and plurilingualism. The course covers curriculum design and development in the context of linguistic theory, changing learning environments and the need for intercultural communication competence. It examines the development of learning and teaching materials. It explores techniques and strategies of language assessment, taking into consideration the main frameworks of standards in Chinese and English and the development of intercultural communication competence.

LED 7110 (4 US Credits)
Language and Teaching I (20 UK Credits)
Graduate Programs

The course forms a first stage of language teaching programme with a possible exit award of Postgraduate Certificate. The course content consists of three key elements: linguistic concepts and strata of analysis, analysis of the target language in the learning context, and teaching observation and peer teaching practice with an emphasis on the delivery of specific aspects of language in typical learning environments. These are examined in the context of different languages. The focus of the course is on the development of knowledge and skills in the analysis of language and competence in the delivery of planned and prepared teaching.

LED 7115 (4 US Credits)
Language and Teaching II (20 UK Credits)
Graduate Programs

The course builds on LED 7110 by examining language and teaching at a more advanced theoretical level. It is the second stage of language teaching programme with a possible exit award of Postgraduate Diploma. The course consists of three key elements: firstly in-depth understanding of the schools of linguistics and applied linguistics, secondly their implications for the teaching and learning of languages in terms of curricula design, teaching materials and classroom practices and procedures and thirdly the development of teaching practice informed by theory. The course explores the interface between linguistic theory and language teaching and learning. Students develop their professional teaching skills in the target language in the context of a strong theoretical base, with the inter-cultural awareness and competence needed for language teaching in a multilingual world.

Comparative Corporate Governance (20 UK Credits)
 Graduate Programs

The course defines corporate governance as the set of policies, processes and customs by which a company is directed and controlled. The way a company is governed influences the rights and relationships among organizational stakeholders, and ultimately how an organisation is managed. This course teaches the fundamentals of Corporate Governance from a variety of angles – the board of directors, senior management, investors, the media, proxy advisors, regulators and other stakeholders – and focusses on assessing the effectiveness and execution of governance roles and responsibilities from a comparative international perspective. The main legal systems covered are the EU, UK and US corporate governance with the possibility of extending this fundamental knowledge to other areas in the world.

International Trade Law (0 UK Credits)
 Graduate Programs

The selling and purchasing of goods across territorial borders is one of the most basic but yet sophisticated commercial activities nowadays. International trade involves understanding contracts and their terms including letters of credit, contracts of sale of goods, carriage and insurance in the pursuance of certainty and predictability regarding the eventualities of such transactions. Based primarily on English Law, this course develops the international sales contract based on the United Nations Convention on the International Sale of Goods 1980 (CSIG). The experience of the CSIG with nearly eighty countries subscribing represents an attempt to create uniform, transnational private law.

MBL 7103 (4 US Credits)
Legal Aspects of International Finance (20 UK Credits)
 Graduate Programs

This course examines the law and practice of various international financial transactions that are used to raise both equity and debt for a corporate. The structure, legal form and content of these instruments are examined in detail, together with the rights and obligations of the various parties involved. The concept and practise of syndicated loans, Eurobonds, IPOs and capital increases are analysed. Although primarily based on an examination and analysis of current international principles, reference is made to relevant laws, including those of the EU, UK, the US, Asia and national systems. The course has a strong comparative and international law aspect to it as well as being based on current market and practitioner insight and best practice on each area.

MBL 7104 (4 US Credits)
Conflicts of Business Law (20 UK Credits)
 Graduate Programs

This course covers conflict of laws or what is also known as 'private international law' and examines the ways in which individual States or group of States - notably the UK, the EU and the US - endeavour to deal with the types of conflict of laws problems that arise in international commerce. Therefore, the course covers claims and transactions in business and commerce that involve a foreign element. In particular, the module covers the issues of jurisdiction, choice of laws and enforcement of foreign judgements in relation to contractual and tortious litigation. This module will also include how to avoid the potential conflicts of laws pitfalls. Both the English common law and European conflict law rules are examined and comparative perspectives are added.

Game Theory and Decision Methods (12 UK Credits)
 School of Business and Economics

This course provides an introduction to game theory and its relation to decision methods in business. The course will cover the core principles of game theory and its role in the process of decision making in business. The use of game algebra and the analyses of the structure of various types of practical statistical decision problems as applied to business will be emphasized. The areas to be studied will include decision making under uncertainty, risk analysis, Baye's strategies, decision trees, linear programming, Markov Processes, game strategies, classification of games, game trees, the Nash equilibrium, zero-sum games, mixed strategy games, the prisoner's dilemma and repeated games, collective action games and evolutionary games in the context of hawk-dove games. Applications to specific strategic situation such as in bargaining, bidding and market competition will be explored.

Islam and The West (12 UK Credits)
School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

The aim of this course is to focus on the historical, political and religious relationships between "Islam" and the "West". Islam has for centuries been Europe's neighbour and cultural contestant with a history of conflict and co-existence. Since September 11 there has been increasing talk of a "clash of civilizations", but globalization has also created an interdependency of faiths which requires greater cooperation, understanding, and dialogue. A recurrent theme of this course will be whether it is possible to separate the world into monolithic entities called "Islam" and the "West". Why is one defined in terms of religion and the other a geographical designation? Further, we are increasingly witnessing "Islam in the West". Muslims are not confined to the Middle East but have spread in large numbers to Europe and the United States and there have been Islamic communities living in the Balkans and in parts of southern Europe for centuries. Another theme will be the relations between religion and state in Islam and Christianity. Is Islam inherently resistant to secularization as some scholars believe?

Politics goes to Hollywood (12 UK Credits)
School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

Popular culture often reflects and shapes the political landscape of a given epoch. This course critically investigates the tensions between actual political conditions and events and their representations in popular culture, particularly in film. In using selected concepts and theories of political science this course seeks to identify and describe explicit and implicit political content in contemporary popular culture. The course will provide students with an opportunity not only to critically examine a variety of contemporary political analyses on key issues but also to independently assess the relevance and coherence of political concepts through the medium of film. Indicative themes studied may include changes in political economy, race and identity politics, contemporary warfare and ecological crises.

Islam in Global Politics (TP) (12 UK Credits)
School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

The aim of this special travelling course is to focus on the historical, political and religious role played by 'Islam' in global politics. Particularly since the events of September 11, attention has been turned to the "clash of civilizations" with a particular focus on Islam and its neighbours. The rise of globalization has also created an interdependency of faiths which requires greater co-operation, understanding, and dialogue. A recurrent theme of this course, which will make use of key historical sites, guest speakers and special collections/archives/ museums in parts of the Muslim world, will be whether Islam really is a monolithic entity which can be separated from the rest of the world. As many non-Islamic states now have significant Muslim minorities, is this notion of Islam as a discrete civilization any longer tenable (if it was ever tenable)? Another theme will be the relations between religion and state in Islam. Is Islam inherently resistant to secularization and incompatible with democratisation, as some scholars believe? Special note: site visits and guest lectures may change subject to availability and faculty expertise.

Policy-Making in a Globalized World (12 UK Credits)
School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

This course investigates the process of policy-making in modern states. It explores how in the new globalized world governments "import" and "borrow" policy ideas from each other, while analyzing how the different actors – states, bureaucrats, think-tanks, policy-networks, lobby groups, citizens, etc – participate and influence the policy-making process. Through role-play activities (such as writing a political manifesto, advising a President on a foreign-policy issue, or enacting a policy-network in the policy process) students will understand the complexities of policy-making and the challenges that the modern state faces in the era of globalization.

Ethnicity and Identity (12 UK Credits)

School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

Examines the questions of whether ethnicity is a universal phenomenon, and if ethnic conflict is inevitable. Investigates why ethnicity became such an important tool of political organization in the 20th century. This course examines ethnicity, and to a lesser extent religion and nationalism, as bases of social and political belonging and differentiation and sources of both creativity and conflict. Starting with the premise that identity is socially constructed, the ways in which ethnic identity has been formed and used in different societies will be examined. Different theories of ethnicity will be explored during the course, as well as specific case studies. Key contemporary issues in the study of ethnicity and identity, such as immigration and multiculturalism, are also addressed.

Internships

The London internship is a student work placement that aims to provide students from all disciplines and majors with the intellectual, professional, and personal skills that will enable them to function well in a culturally diverse working environment in all key job sectors. All internships are supervised by faculty, and all last a minimum of 6 weeks in length and are carried out part-time Monday to Wednesday or equivalent. Each student will also complete 2 assessments throughout the internship, namely: keeping a written journal of their experience and preparing an internship portfolio. These assessments have been designed to help the student reflect on the skills they are learning and the benefits gained from the internship experience, and also to help them determine if their current career goals are the correct fit for them. During the internship, staff of the Internship Office and a faculty supervisor work closely with each student to ensure that the placement is a successful one. Students' final grades are based on several factors including, written assignments and a report from their workplace supervisor which is taken into consideration. Prerequisites: 75 completed credit hours upon application to the London Internship (or 60 completed credit hours); GPA of 3.2 for psychology; 3.0 for finance, and policy majors; and a GPA of 2.75 for all other majors (* minimum GPA of 3.0 for those with 60 credit hours, and PSY not available to students until they have reached 75 credit hours); 2 strong academic references.

This course introduces the fundamental principles and tools involved in the practice of journalism. Students will focus on core journalism skills, in particular research, reporting and writing for different journalistic purposes. Students will also explore the news media landscape, examining different forms of journalism and considering how technological change has affected journalistic practice across the full range of media. The course also explores the workings of the relationship between the media and public relations and introduces students to the legal and ethical issues which affect the practice of journalism.

PRJ 7102 (4 US Credits)
PR, Journalism and the Media (20 UK Credits)
 Graduate Programs

This course develops PR and journalism skills acquired in the first semester, giving the students the opportunity to work on PR and journalism projects and to explore the relationship between the two disciplines through role play, simulations (where for example students may at different times perform PR and journalistic roles in relation to other students) and other practical exercises while reflecting upon the relevant legal and ethical issues. Students' work will be related to an understanding of developments in these industries and the business imperatives which drive the media.

PRJ 7104 (4 US Credits)
Professional Digital Media Skills (20 UK Credits)
 Graduate Programs

The module is designed to enhance students' skills in the use of online media. It is split between two main assessments, one focused on research and development, the other on online media practice. For their practical assessment, students have to create an individual media project that sets out to use the potentials of the net and new media technologies in an informed and innovative way. Students will be able to focus on PR, advertising and/or journalism but will be expected to display an understanding of all these disciplines. For the more conceptual assessment, students have to do research and development work, coming up with an idea for an innovative online media product/strategy which they then sell via a short presentation. Students on this module are also required to keep a log documenting the work they do on their assessments. At the end of the module, they draw on the notes kept on their blog for a summary critical report, which evaluates the work done on the module and summarises the main things learnt.

PRJ 7500 (8 US Credits)
Professional Research Project (40 UK Credits)
 Graduate Programs

For students working independently on their Masters professional research project. The professional research project (equivalent to 10,000-12,000 words) encourages students to study intensively a topic agreed with a supervisor, and so develop skills and experience which can be applied in work placements or further graduate work. Students apply their knowledge from across the fall and spring semesters to researching and developing a project, which may relate to the internship. This course is comprised of intensive and regular meetings on a group and one-to-one (by appointment) basis with a project supervisor to discuss the progress of research, development and writing.

PRJ 7550 (12 US Credits)
Extended Professional Research Project (60 UK Credits)
Graduate Programs

For students working independently on their Masters professional research project. An extended project equivalent to a 15,000-20,000 word thesis is offered as an alternative to the internship. The professional research project encourages students to study intensively a topic agreed with a supervisor, and so develop skills and experience which can be applied in work placements or further graduate work. Students apply their knowledge from across the autumn and spring semesters to researching a topic on public relations and journalism, which may relate to their work experience. This course is comprised of intensive and regular meetings on a one-to-one (by appointment) basis with a project supervisor to discuss the progress of research, development and writing.

PRJ 7902 (4 US Credits)
Internship (20 UK Credits)
Graduate Programs

A 3-5/days a week work placement of approximately three months (depending on the requirements of the organization in question; a minimum of 9 weeks) within an organization to enable students to participate in graduate level experiential learning and so develop hands-on skills and professional experience which will prepare them for work in the fields of public relations and/or journalism. Placements are supervised, career-related work experiences combined with reflective, academic study that help students 'learn by doing'. During the internship, the staff of the Internship office and the MA internship faculty supervisor work closely with each student and the organisation to ensure that the placement is a successful one.

PSY 3100 (3 US Credits)
Foundations in Psychology (12 UK Credits)
School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

Introduces students to the major areas within the psychology discipline, through current empirical research and theoretical debate. Topics include: scientific methodology; brain functioning; sensation and perception; evolutionary theory; consciousness; development; personality; social psychology; psychopathology; language; and learning. Students discover how psychological research is conducted and how research findings can be applied to understanding human behaviour.

PSY 3200 (3 US Credits)
History of Childhood (12 UK Credits)
School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

The aim of this module is to explore childhood as a social construction. Students will explore how childhood has been portrayed across different societies and at different times. Students will also have the opportunity to examine how children are influenced by the cultures in which they live, learn and are cared for. Through the study of historical and social constructions of childhood, students will develop a fuller understanding of how ways of working with children can be shaped by external influences. These issues will be investigated through different theoretical perspectives which have been used as a framework by researchers in the field. Furthermore, a variety of cultural perspectives will be employed to interrogate the western perspectives on child development. In addition, some critical analysis of these frameworks will be undertaken, by examining how well these starting points 'panned out', and whether it is possible to integrate insights from these different perspectives. This analysis of cultural and historical perspectives of childhood will enable students to be more aware of issues and expectations linked to offering services to children in an era of globalisation and multiculturalism.

Beginning Human Sciences Research (12 UK Credits)
School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

Beginning Human Science Research introduces students to the study and interpretation of lived experience. The course covers a range of qualitative models that govern human science research, with a special emphasis on the common features that distinguish them from natural science and quantitative research frameworks. One of the special features of the course is its practical emphasis, whereby students are encouraged to generate human science research questions, to carry out interviews and to complete a series of writing exercises that stimulate their capacity to interpret lived experience. The course also covers the relationship between writing and reflection, the value of narrative approaches, and research ethics in qualitative research. Students will be expected to reflect deeply about the experiential workshops, and to demonstrate their understanding by means of descriptive interpretations and thematic analyses on key topics.

Concept & Hist Issues Psychol (12 UK Credits)
School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

This course engages students in an overview of the main philosophical, scientific and social ideas that formulated psychology as we know it today. We will cover conceptual and methodological positions underlying different paradigms and research trends in the study of human behaviour. We will examine the following questions: what is science and to what extent is psychology permeated by the characteristics of science; what is the extent of social and cultural construction in psychology; is or can psychology be morally or politically neutral; what can we learn from the history of psychology so far? In addition this course will address the issues involved in acquiring knowledge through various scientific methodologies, the critique of traditional methods in psychology, the relationship between facts and values and the significance of the standpoint from which values are understood. Finally, we will discuss ethical issues in psychology, their origins, the moral underpinnings of theory, research and practice and how psychologists construct ethically responsible practices within a social environment.

Developmental Psychology (12 UK Credits)
School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

Developmental Psychology explores the child's developing experience of the world. Major theories and issues in development from conception to adolescence are examined with a particular emphasis on the nature-nurture issue and cross-cultural studies. Topics covered include: fetal development, physical development, cognitive development, social development and personality development. Students are encouraged to actively participate in class discussion and use their own experiences to help understand theoretical issues.

Biological Basis of Human Behaviour (12 UK Credits)
School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

Exposes students to the relationship between biology and behavior. Students are expected to assess critically the extent to which biological explanations can be used to understand or explain human behavior. Topics covered are: motivational behavior; social behavior; sleep; perception; learning; and memory. Special discussion topics include: sexual behavior; eating disorders; emotions; and consciousness. In addition, the course also looks at perceptual and memory disorders. Prerequisite: PSY 3100 Foundations in Psychology and at least one other lower-division psychology course

Scientific Reasoning in Psychology (12 UK Credits)
School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

Scientific reasoning underpins the vast majority of contemporary research in psychology. This course introduces students to scientific concepts, their development and impact on the field of psychology. Students will engage with critical reading and analysis of psychological scholarly work, and develop a working knowledge of the application of design principles and statistical reasoning within psychological research.

Human Development (12 UK Credits)
School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

This course is designed to explore in detail the way in which socio-cultural contexts influence the development of the self in infancy and childhood. Special emphasis will be given to the development of the self-concept and self-esteem, interpersonal processes and the application of psychoanalytic ideas to human development; including the work of Erik Erikson, Anna Freud and D. W. Winnicott. The course will also focus on the role of family processes on socialization, the effects of trauma in childhood, peer group dynamics and children's friendships; as well as a wide variety of theoretical perspectives on adolescence, and contemporary theories of the relationship between insecure attachment and psychopathology. Students will have the opportunity to engage in independent research projects examining a variety of topics, including the effects of parenting styles on the developing child, the long-term effects of solitude, and the effects of inter-parental conflict on the child's sense of security.

Social psychological processes influence how we perceive, judge, remember, and behave toward people. These processes shape, and are shaped by, our social expectations, social roles, social goals, and social interactions. This course is designed to illustrate the relationship between the individual and society and to demonstrate the multiple ways that social psychology can be applied to the individual - society interface in specific topic areas. Students are encouraged to critically reflect on the strengths and weaknesses of various social psychology theories, to consider their research methods and their applications to real life situations.

Mind & Language (12 UK Credits)
School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

This is an interdisciplinary course that introduces students to current research and debates in the areas of language and communication. Whereas similar courses have focused on the relationship between language and mind, this course aims to address a relatively neglected aspect of psychology: the relationship between language and self. Beginning with an overview of the biological basis of language and a review of the developmental research on language acquisition, the course will also examine the relation between gesture and language. Clinical models of communication will be covered, focusing on pathological forms of communication such as schizophrenia and autism. The second part of the course will examine structuralist and poststructuralist approaches to language, linguistic interpretations of psychoanalytic theory, narrative communication and narrative identity, as well as theories of reading and writing.

Psychology and Cinema (12 UK Credits)
School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

This course examines psychological approaches to understanding films. Beginning with classical psychoanalytic interpretations of contemporary films, the course will evaluate the relevance of Freud's work on the uncanny, voyeurism, repetition compulsion and trauma. Students will also be introduced to Barthes' influential semiotic work on narrative codes and their use in the film industry, as well as Laura Mulvey's seminal feminist critique of Hollywood. Of special interest is the cinema's potential, as an art form, to capture contemporary psychological processes such as individuation, the fear of fragmentation and the search for a narrative identity. There is a special emphasis on Jungian approaches to film, the Symbolic cinema, critical analyses of narrative structures, and the application of existential-phenomenological categories of thought to reading films. The course is run as a seminar, so students are expected to read widely and participate with interest.

Developmental Psychopathology (12 UK Credits)
School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

The course examines the psychological forces that divert development from its typical channels and either sustain the deviation or foster a return to typical development. Using a comparative developmental framework, the psychopathologies to be covered will be arranged in chronological order from infancy to childhood and adolescence. Thus autism, insecure attachment and oppositional-defiant disorder will be examined in relation to typical development in infancy and early childhood, while ADHD and learning disabilities will be studied in the context of the preschool years. Other topics include: anxiety disorders in middle childhood, child and adolescent suicide, conduct and eating disorders, as well as the risks incurred by brain damage, child maltreatment and social victimization. The course will also cover alternative models of child psychopathology, assessment procedures and approaches to intervention and prevention. Students will have the opportunity to do in-depth research on a topic of their choice and to think critically about case material.

School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

Cognitive science is an exciting interdisciplinary approach to the mind that draws on research from a variety of disciplines, including philosophy, computer science, linguistics, neuroscience, and psychology. The resulting theories and data have also exerted a profound influence on how philosophers approach fundamental issues about the nature of the mind. This course focuses on such issues, including: Is the mind a computer? How much of the mind is innate and how much is learned? Is the mind a unitary general purpose mechanism, or is it divided into specialized subsystems or courses? How do we represent the world in thought? Are human beings rational?

Research in Criminology (12 UK Credits)
School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

The course examines the psychological, biological, sociological, and environmental factors that are proposed to play a role in crime involvement. Using a developmental framework, the theoretical viewpoints to be covered will be arranged into individual vs. setting-level explanations of crime, and ultimately, be integrated. Thus psychological and biological factors will be examined as individual-level factors, while environmental and sociological factors will be studied in the context of setting-level factors. Other topics include: research methods in criminological research, longitudinal research in criminology, the roles of empathy, shame, and guilt in violence, as well as neurocriminology and crime intervention and prevention. Students will have the opportunity to do in-depth research on a topic of their choice and to think critically about criminological research

Psychoanalysis (12 UK Credits)

School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

The course examines the development of psychoanalytic theory and practice from its early beginnings in turn-of-the-century Vienna to contemporary practices. Beginning with Freud's early studies in hysteria, the course reviews Freud's seminal ideas on the unconscious, sexuality and the transference; as well as Klein's contributions to child analysis and psychoanalytic theory. The work of the Neo-Freudians is also covered. In particular, the course examines Horney's pioneering model of the structure of the neuroses and Sullivan's interpersonal critique of classical psychoanalysis. Finally, the course considers the work of Fairbairn on the schizoid personality and his unique reformulations of psychoanalytic theory and method. Students will have the opportunity to do in-depth research on a psychoanalytic model of their choice and to think critically about case material. Students will also have the opportunity to apply psychoanalytic concepts to the interpretation of films.

Existential-Phenomenological (12 UK Credits)

School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

This course is an introduction to phenomenology and existential psychology, focusing on the works of Merleau-Ponty, Jaspers, Sartre, Camus and Simone de Beauvoir. Beginning with Kierkegaard's psychology of anxiety and despair, the course covers: the structure of human experience, the psychology of limit situations, embodiment and sexuality, the ontology of human relationships. Sartre's theory of human conflict will be contrasted with Simone de Beauvoir's ethics of ambiguity. Of special interest is Merleau-Ponty's account of human freedom and the structure of life choices, as well as Heidegger's existential analysis of temporality and death. The course also examines the literature of the absurd, in particular, Camus' existential analysis of suicide and authenticity. The application of the phenomenological method to literature and films is explored and students will be given the opportunity to apply their phenomenological ideas to their 'reading' of a selected short film. There is an emphasis on active forms of learning, so that students are expected to read widely, think deeply and participate in class discussions.

Memory and Awareness (12 UK Credits)

School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

This course introduces students to key topics, theories and scientific methods in the study of memory with a specific focus on the concept of consciousness in memory. We will first cover concepts and methodological approaches in memory followed by a discussion on the models of memory proposed by different theorists. These topics will set the basis for a more in depth examination of neuroanatomy and psychopharmacology in relation to memory models leading to the topics of encoding vs. retrieval parameters and distortions of memory. The implications of findings in the aforementioned areas regarding the educational and legal systems will be studied. The connection of these areas with consciousness will then be established and a more in depth discussion of concepts will follow including recollection and familiarity, episodic memory and autothetic consciousness, nonconscious memory, memory for emotional events etc.

Cognitive neuroscience aims to explain cognitive processes and behaviour in terms of their underlying brain mechanisms. It is an exciting and rapidly developing field of research that straddles the traditional disciplines of psychology and biology. Cognitive neuroscientists take the view that knowledge about the fundamental mechanisms of the nervous system can lead to a deeper understanding of complex mental functions such as decision-making, schizophrenia, pain, sleep and memory. The course will emphasise the importance of combining information from cognitive experimental designs, epidemiologic studies, neuroimaging, and clinical neuropsychological approaches to understand cognitive processes. The first half of the course will offer a wider-range of current research topics. The latter part of the course will focus on the Faculty research specialisms to potentiate students' experience and learning. To put it simply: how does the brain think?

Psychology of Happiness and Wellbeing (12 UK Credits)
School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

Positive psychologists argue that traditional psychology has tended to focus on dysfunction and unhappiness and that balance needs to be restored by research into what makes life go well. This course focuses on the science of happiness and wellbeing, integrating findings from Positive Psychology studies and theories. During this course, students will critically evaluate the teaching of Positive Psychology as a means of enhancing happiness and understand the difference between weaknesses and strengths, and how positive psychology emphasises the latter in contrast to traditional psychology's emphasis on the former. Students will appreciate some of the factors that lead to happiness and learn how to capitalise on these factors in order to achieve lasting happiness, especially by getting to know their own strengths; students will also understand and use a variety of techniques and interventions designed to enhance happiness and wellbeing.

In a similar manner, a study conducted between 2001-2003 by the National Institute of Mental Health reported that, at some point in their lives, 46% of Americans met the criteria established by the American Psychiatric Association for at least one mental illness. Modern Clinical Psychology implements evidence-based treatments to improve psychologically-based distress or dysfunction and to promote subjective and behavioural well-being and personal development.

Internships

The London internship is a student work placement that aims to provide students from all disciplines and majors with the intellectual, professional, and personal skills that will enable them to function well in a culturally diverse working environment in all key job sectors. All internships are supervised by faculty, and all last a minimum of 6 weeks in length and are carried out part-time Monday to Wednesday or equivalent. Each student will also complete 2 assessments throughout the internship, namely: keeping a written journal of their experience and preparing an internship portfolio. These assessments have been designed to help the student reflect on the skills they are learning and the benefits gained from the internship experience, and also to help them determine if their current career goals are the correct fit for them. During the internship, staff of the Internship Office and a faculty supervisor work closely with each student to ensure that the placement is a successful one. Students' final grades are based on several factors including, written assignments and a report from their workplace supervisor which is taken into consideration. Prerequisites: 75 completed credit hours upon application to the London Internship (or 60 completed credit hours); GPA of 3.2 for psychology; 3.0 for finance, and policy majors; and a GPA of 2.75 for all other majors (* minimum GPA of 3.0 for those with 60 credit hours, and PSY not available to students until they have reached 75 credit hours); 2 strong academic references.

Theatre & Community I: Me and My (12 UK Credits)
Department of General Education

During interactive workshop sessions, students are introduced to the concept and practice of Forum Theatre, as devised by Augusto Boal, in his seminal text, Theatre of the Oppressed, as well as the book co-written with Peter Hall, Towards a Poor Theatre. Students will learn a series of techniques during which devised theatre is used as a mechanism for solving problems, during which they will have the opportunity to work as actors, spectators and directors. Through a range of simple class activities students will explore the processes of this approach to theatre, often adapted and built-upon by practitioners in theatre in education and theatre in the community. Through a close study of the formation and performance history of the British theatre company, Cardboard Citizens, students will discover how forum theatre is utilized today to improve the lives of some of the least privileged members of our societies. No previous experience of any of the practices is necessary and the class content will reflect and adapt to the interests and concerns of each individual group of students. Students are assessed through the effort during participation in practical improvisations, and by presentations and a written reflection and not according to concepts of latent "talent".

Movement III: The Physical Impact (12 UK Credits)

Department of General Education

This course is the final in the series of physical and movement skills courses offered by the performance department, and is intended for students who wish to develop to a higher level their practice of ensemble theatre skills, physical theatre skills, and/or movement skills. Drawing on an in-depth exploration of connections between the mind and the body and following the principles of a physical-theatre drama workshop, this class is designed to further increase students' strength, balance, timing and control of the body and voice in the space, be it the classroom, the boardroom or the stage. Students explore methods of increasing their energy, personal confidence, collaborative skills and creativity and will present a series of group and individual devised performances in the genre of their choice at the mid and end semester.

Theatre & Community II: London People's (12 UK Credits)

Department of General Education

During interactive workshop sessions, students explore the application of theatre in education and in the community, with reference to the principles of Forum Theatre and Invisible Theatre, as devised by Augusto Boal, and to the principles and discourses of Theatre in Education as innovated by Dorothea Heathcote. Students will practice a series of techniques during which devised theatre and story-telling are used as mechanisms for solving problems, and will have the opportunity to work as writers, performers, spectators and directors. Through a range of simple class activities students will explore the processes of these approaches to and uses of theatre, and in a series of guided practical assignments, will find their own ways to adapt or apply it to the needs and interests of the local community.

AIFS Summer Internship in THR (12 UK Credits)

Internships

The London internship is a student work placement that aims to provide students from all disciplines and majors with the intellectual, professional, and personal skills that will enable them to function well in a culturally diverse working environment in all key job sectors. All internships are supervised by faculty, and all last a minimum of 6 weeks in length and are carried out part-time Monday to Wednesday or equivalent. Each student will also complete 2 assessments throughout the internship, namely: keeping a written journal of their experience and preparing an internship portfolio. These assessments have been designed to help the student reflect on the skills they are learning and the benefits gained from the internship experience, and also to help them determine if their current career goals are the correct fit for them. During the internship, staff of the Internship Office and a faculty supervisor work closely with each student to ensure that the placement is a successful one. Students' final grades are based on several factors including, written assignments and a report from their workplace supervisor which is taken into consideration. Prerequisites: 75 completed credit hours upon application to the London Internship (or 60 completed credit hours); GPA of 3.2 for psychology; 3.0 for finance, and policy majors; and a GPA of 2.75 for all other majors (* minimum GPA of 3.0 for those with 60 credit hours, and PSY not available to students until they have reached 75 credit hours); 2 strong academic references.

VAM 7100 (4 US Credits)
Research Methods (20 UK Credits)
School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

Introduces students to the process of research, including the ability to work from libraries, exhibitions and institutional archives, and developing skills in visual literacy and academic writing. Students are encouraged to develop independence of thought by discovering, evaluating and making appropriate use of a wide range of approaches to research and writing. This course assists students with the identification of their own interests as they move towards choosing a topic for the professional research project.

VAM 7102 (4 US Credits)
Arts Policy (20 UK Credits)
School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

Aims to give students an understanding of the structure of arts policy in the UK and the USA, as well as on an international level. The course will explore the history of the Department for Culture, Media and Sport (DCMS), the Arts Council and the British Council, in the UK and the National Endowment for the Arts in the USA, making comparisons between the two. Students will be asked to critically engage with different political agendas and how they have impacted arts organisations and the creative industries. Current debate around the instrumentalisation of the arts as social and economic processes will be discussed, alongside questions about how the value of art to society can be evaluated and measured – questions which are central to public policy formation.

VAM 7103 (4 US Credits)
Arts Management and Marketing (20 UK Credits)
School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

Equips students with the management skills — planning, organising, staffing, supervision and controlling — necessary to facilitate the production and presentation of the visual arts to audiences. The course will address strategic planning, finance management, fund-raising, marketing and communication. Students will consider the vision, mission and values — alongside the aims and objectives — of a number of specific international arts organisations.

VAM 7104 (4 US Credits)
Curating (20 UK Credits)
School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

Equips students with the practical skills and theoretical knowledge necessary for making exhibitions in a museum or gallery. The course will trace the history of curating from the Salons in Paris through key exhibitions produced by the avant-gardes in the 20th century. Students will become familiar with current topics in curating, including the concept of the 'universal' museum, the 'artist as curator', new institutionalism and the 'educational turn' in curating, alongside issues to do with museum collections, including the ethics of ownership. Students will also explore practical aspects of curating, such as transport, insurance, installation and object-handling. The course will make use of London's many arts institutions.

VAM 7105 (4 US Credits)
Art Education and the Gallery (20 UK Credits)
School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

Engages students with current discourse on the educative, social and regenerative potential of the arts, and how these potentials are activated in museum programming and public policy. Students will explore the practical application of learning theories in the gallery; access, outreach and audience development in the museum and case studies of the success and failure of the arts as instruments of urban renewal, both through capital projects and community engagement. As well as studying local and international contexts, the course will draw upon case examples of regional museums and galleries in the UK.

VAM 7106 (4 US Credits)
The International Art Market (20 UK Credits)
School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

Provides students with an overview of the international art market, including its history and current dynamics. Specific attention will be paid to emerging markets in China, Russia, India and the Middle East. The course analyses the structure, theory and practice of the constituent components of the 'for-profit' arts sector, including commercial galleries, auction houses, art fairs and consultancy organisations. Qualitative and quantitative research methods for art business and investment will be discussed.

VAM 7500 (8 US Credits)
Professional Research Project (40 UK Credits)
School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

For students working independently on their Masters professional research project. The professional research project encourages students to study intensively a topic agreed with a supervisor, and so develop skills and experience which can be applied in work placements or further graduate work. Students apply their knowledge from across the fall and spring semesters to researching a topic on visual arts management and curating, which may relate to the internship. This course is comprised of intensive and regular meetings on a group and one-to-one (by appointment) basis with a project supervisor to discuss the progress of research, development and writing.

VAM 7550 (12 US Credits)
Extended Professional Research Project (60 UK Credits)
School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

For students working independently on their Masters professional research project. An extended project equivalent to a 15,000-20,000 word thesis is offered as an alternative to the mandatory internship. The professional research project encourages students to study intensively a topic agreed with a supervisor, and so develop skills and experience which can be applied in work placements or further graduate work. Students apply their knowledge from across the autumn and spring semesters to researching a topic on visual arts management and curating, which may relate to their work experience. This course is comprised of intensive and regular meetings on a one-to-one (by appointment) basis with a project supervisor to discuss the progress of research, development and writing.

VAM 7902 (4 US Credits)
Internship (20 UK Credits)
School of Com Arts & Social Sciences

A part-time work placement of approximately three months (depending on the requirements of the organization in question; a minimum of 9 weeks) within an organization to enable students to participate in graduate level experiential learning and so develop hands-on skills and professional experience which will prepare them for work in a range of arts and creative cultural industries. Placements are supervised, career-related work experiences combined with reflective, academic study that help students 'learn by doing'. During the internship, the staff of the Internship Office and a faculty supervisor work closely with each student and the organization to ensure that the placement is a successful one.
