Course Code:	DEV 7500
Course Leader:	Dr Michael Keating
Student Engagement Hours:	400
Independent / Guided Learning:	400
Semester:	SUMMER
Credits:	40 UK CATS credits 20 ECTS credits 8 US credits

Course Description:

For students working independently on their Masters thesis. The dissertation encourages students to study intensively a topic agreed with a supervisor, and so develop skills and experience which can be applied in work placements or further graduate work. The course is comprised of independent research and writing, overseen by a thesis supervisor, resulting in production of a 10-12,000 word thesis. Collaborative and supportive dialogue with the supervisor and fellow 'junior research colleagues' will involve advice on the research and writing process, suggestions for resources and research directions, and comments on draft chapters of the thesis.

Pre-requisites: MA International Development students only

Aims and Objectives:

- For the supervisor to guide the student, as a junior research colleague, through the research, writing and production of an MA level thesis of 10-12,000 words

- For the student to undertake independent/autonomous research on a topic which makes a valuable contribution to the field
- To develop skills and experience which can be applied in work placements or further graduate work

Programme Outcomes:

At the end of this course, the students will have achieved the following programme outcomes.

A; B; C; D; E; F; G; H

A detailed list of the programme outcomes is found in the Programme Specification. This is maintained by Registry and located at:

Learning Outcomes:

By the end of this course, successful students should be able to:

- Demonstrate a deep and systematic understanding of key texts, thinkers, intellectual paradigms, themes and debates in a specific topic in International Development, and reflecting on their relationship to empirical evidence.
- Develop and utilise theory and methodology appropriate to substantive inquiry of an empirical subject area within International Development.
- Demonstrate a deep, systematic and innovative ability to adapt and apply knowledge in the discipline of International Development to a highly focused research question.
- Design and undertake a substantial investigation of a significant areas of theory and/or practice in International Development, using selected advanced methodological approaches.
- Engage with and evaluate complex, incomplete or contradictory evidence while critically reflecting on the different theoretical and methodological tools used.
- Demonstrate the ability to exercise initiative in organising and pursuing a supervised project, while accepting full accountability for outcomes.
- Demonstrate the ability to gather, organise and effectively communicate complex and abstract ideas and diverse information with regard to a complex and specialised thesis topic.
- Demonstrate the ability for innovative and autonomous learning, normative and ethical reflection, self-evaluation and engagement with disciplinary benchmarks.

Indicative Content:

- production of a 10-12,000 word thesis, suitably illustrated, evidencing:
- intensive autonomous study of a topic agreed with a supervisor

- primary research making a valuable contribution to the field
- a coherent argument
- appropriate, critical use of secondary sources
- footnotes and a bibliography complying with either Harvard or Chicago referencing system
- satisfactory presentation and scholarly apparatus

Assessment:

This course conforms to the Richmond University Assessment Norms approved at Academic Board.

Teaching Methodology:

AUTONOMOUS RESEARCH AND RESEARCH SUPERVISION

The Course will require independent research overseen by a thesis supervisor, tutorial opportunities including with specialist faculty for more specific academic guidance, including comments on draft materials, and faculty and peer review feedback at a thesis conference.
