Course Description:

This course will examine the global political economy through a framework that goes beyond traditions of state-centrism, boundaries between politics and economics and the concept of globalisation as an overarching structural force. The course will study theoretical approaches to international political economy (IPE) and examine contemporary issues pertaining to processes of globalisation. Students explore the theories of leading analysts in the historical development of IPE, which may include Gilpin, Keohane, Cox and Kindleberger. Contemporary themes and issues are addressed, potentially including economic crises, trade, production and the role of International Financial Institutions (IFI's).

Pre-requisites: MA International Relations and MA International Development students only

Aims and Objectives:

- To cultivate a sophisticated understanding of some of the central debates, themes and contestations within the general framework of Global Political Economy.
- To develop a clear sense of Political Economy as an evolving discipline that continues to draw upon a range of conceptual and theoretical advances in its analyses of the contemporary world.
- To promote an abstract and critical space for thinking about a wide and intellectually demanding range of literature, and develop the ability to articulate this thought clearly and concisely in both the written and spoken form.
