Course Description:

Aims to give students a sophisticated understanding of the structure of arts policy in the UK and the USA, as well as on an international level. The course will explore the history of the Department for Culture, Media and Sport (DCMS), the Arts Council and the British Council, in the UK and the National Endowment for the Arts in the USA, making comparisons between the two. Students will be asked to critically engage with different political agendas and how they have impacted arts organisations and the creative industries. Current debate around the instrumentalisation of the arts as social and economic processes will be discussed, alongside questions about how the value of the arts to society can be evaluated and measured – questions which are central to public policy formation.

Prerequisites:

MA VAM and PAM students only

Aims and Objectives:

- To introduce students to arts policy from an intercultural perspective
- To explore the funding structure for arts and culture in the UK
- To examine the funding structure for arts and culture in the US, Europe and around the world

- To analyse the value of culture, as set out in cultural policy
- To consider different methodologies for measuring and assessing the impact of arts and culture
- To examine the relationships between arts policy and social, economic and educative agendas
- To explore policy formation and cultural diplomacy
- To engage critically with texts

Assessment:

This course conforms to the Richmond University Standard Assessment Norms approved at Academic Board.

Teaching Methodology:

Teaching will include interactive lectures, supplemented with a range of audiovisual aids, designed to introduce students to the key concepts of professional practice. Guest speakers and activities will contribute alternative perspectives and experience. Students will develop their critical understanding of these concepts and their practical application through a range of workshops and group and individual exercises undertaken in class and out of class. Their group and individual presentations and written work will be discussed in feedback sessions which explore responses to issues arising from professional practice. The teaching will be supplemented with individual tutorials designed to address students' personal needs.
