Course Description:

In this course, students will discuss and respond to social issues in the local area through group work, reflecting on how they can become both collaborative and independent learners. They will research the context of and plan for service learning in the local area. They will learn to use a range of digital platforms for individual and group project work, focussing strongly on effective communication, including oral presentation and written reports using a range of relevant primary and secondary sources.

Prerequisites: None

Aims and Objectives:

The aim of this course is to equip students with both conceptual and practical tools applicable to both their transition to university life, by becoming effective independent learners and to the demands of the workplace today and tomorrow. Students will develop

- oral communication and listening skills through making and responding to presentations
- awareness of learning strategies appropriate to the individual
- digital fluency through learning to effectively use a range of technologies for a chosen project, recognising the advantages and disadvantages of different technologies
- teamwork and self-organisational skills through carrying out a project with others
- information literacy through practising the use of specific search techniques to aid research for a chosen project
- critical thinking and reflective writing through research on a community issue

Programme Outcomes:

A1, A2, A5, A8, A9, B1, B2, B3, B4, B6, B9, B10, B12

A detailed list of the programme outcomes is found in the Programme Specification. This is maintained by Registry and located at:

Learning Outcomes:

By the end of this course, successful students should be able to:

- set achievable short-term and long-term goals for university, further academic and professional life and future employability
- research and understand the context for a chosen community activity
- understand and implement the key skills required to make an effective oral presentation
- apply knowledge of the use of specific research techniques, software and applications to determine their appropriateness for a range of tasks
- identify effective learning strategies to aid academic success, including through group work.
- interpret quantitative data and use appropriate software to create charts and graphs

Indicative Content:

Academic skills across the curriculum:

- Setting goals, course planning, using University online resources

- Visual presentation skills using Google, Microsoft, Apple or other application
- Spreadsheets and creating charts and graphs
- Report templates, considering accessibility and aesthetic

Assessment:

This course conforms to the University Assessment Norms approved at Academic Board.

Teaching Methodology:

Students will work in pairs or small teams to plan and undertake tasks for an agreed project related to a social issue in the local area. Digital literacies will be taught and practised in computer labs and on laptops or other personal devices in the classroom, with experimentation outside the classroom. Peer mentors and senior students will share their own related experiences. Outside speakers will address students in class, student affairs personnel will provide support and advice, and a fact-finding trip will take place in the local community. Transitional classroom skills will be practised through role play and small group discussions.
