Course Description:

For those interested in the performing arts, but with no experience, this course introduces students to the fundamentals of being in front of an audience. Games, storytelling, role-playing, playwriting and improvisation are used to explore the basic tenets of performance, whether for a presentation, a business meeting, or in a theatrical production.

Prerequisites: None

Aims and Objectives:

This aim of this course is to introduce students to the basic skills needed to be able to perform in public. Students will be exposed to a variety of techniques and the general history of contemporary and classical performance skills. Much of the course involves practical work such as concentration, physical and improvisational exercises in the development of imagination for performance. Storytelling, poetry, acting from text and development of different interpretations will all be explored through class exercises, individual and group projects. Students will be expected to attend one or two assigned performances through the term, for which assessment/critiques are prepared. Successful students will gain the knowledge and skills for the appreciation of theatre in its widest sense. Students who are planning careers in the theatre or any kind of public speaking will find this introduction to performance skills very useful.

Programme Outcomes:

3A(i); 3B(i); 3B(ii); 3C(i); 3D(i)

A detailed list of the programme outcomes is found in the Programme Specification. This is maintained by Registry and located at:

<https://www.richmond.ac.uk/programme-and-course-specifications/>

Learning Outcomes:

By the end of this course, successful students should be able to:

- Demonstrate a basic proficiency and discipline of fundamental vocal skills.
- Demonstrate a basic understanding of textual interpretation and its historical and contemporary contexts.
- Demonstrate the ability to interpret a variety of texts and respond to coaching and direction.
- Demonstrate constructive behaviour and attitudes towards the collaborative activity of rehearsal and performance.

Indicative Content:

- Creating a free voice, devoid of tension.
- Kinesthetic awareness, how the body moves in space and in relation to others.
- Creating your own story, from your life's experiences.
- Engaging with textual interpretation of classical and modern monologues, dialogues and scene work.
- Interpretation and speaking poetry.
- Introduction to performance critique.

Assessment:

This course conforms to the University Assessment Norms for Theatre approved at Academic Board.

Teaching Methodology:

The course is a workshop. Students will be taught through a series of class exercises. This will consist of drama games, improvisation, monologue delivery and group scenes. Students will then build their performance skills through the application of these exercises into their monologue and scene work. Skills for improved animation of speaking and gesture are challenged within the final project.
